HOPE OF RESCUING MISSING COALMONT MINERS ABANDONED

Rescue Parties Battle in Death-Filled Mine in Desperate Effort to Tear Out Debris That Chokes Main Driveways—Hundreds of Feet of Caving Remain

Thirty Relief Workers Are Overcome by Deadly Gases

(Special to The Colonist)

COALMONT, B.C., Aug. 14.—Only one man, John Parchello, of the doomed afternoon shift of forty-nine men has come out of the shattered and gas-filled interior of the Blakeburn Mine alive. Hope has been abandoned of finding any further living men in the mountain tomb above Tulameen Valley. Reeling and gasping for air, rescue workers staggered one by one out of the death-filled driveways of the mine, only to hurry back as soon as they were revived to once more attack the debris that choked the main tunnel, crosscuts and stopes of the mine where forty-six of their mining companions were—dead or alive—entombed since 7 o'clock Wednesday night. Late tonight hope of finding any of the afternoon shift of the colliery alive was practically abandoned.

HEROIC EFFORTS

The mine is filled with poisonous afterdamp and gas. Despite the danger to their own lives, the rescue workers are labring their way into the wrecked interior of the mine with a determination and heroism rarely equaled. Although they, as experienced miners, realize that there is not one chance in a thousand that another one of the doomed afternoon shift will emerge alive from underground, that one thousandth of a chance is spurring the rescue parties on to almost superhuman efforts.

In twenty-four hours they have cleared away the wreckage and tunneled their way 2,500 feet into the mine. Three hours later they had gained another hundred feet down the incline that dips twenty-one degrees from a point 1,800 feet from the portal. With every foot gained the deadly afterdamp is found to be worse.

Thirty members of rescue parties have been overcome by the poison. They have been carried out to safety where oxygen was pumped into their lungs.

RESCUERS OVERCOME

When the rumbling sound followed by a terrific blast that sprayed fine coal dust and dirt from the timber wrecking the portal, gave notice of a terrific explosion in the mine, rescue workers were immediately organized. The first three men to enter—been

CROWN LANDS AT SUMAS ARE SELLING FAST

Nearly 7,000 Acres of Reclaimed Area Hve Been Sold by Gov't Agents

POLICY OF MINISTRY BRINGS GOOD RESULTS

Hon. William Atkinson Informed Complete Disposal of Tract Expected Soon

Justification of the policy of the Provincial Government in connection with the settlement of the reclaimed area at Sumas is shown by the fact that already the agents, appointed by the administration to handle the sale of the property, have disposed of no less than 6,926 acres. Only 1,771 acres of the public lands in the reclamation project remain to be sold. According to a report made by Phil S. Searle, acting for the Government, it is expected that the bulk of the remaining lands will be sold this Fall, stated Hon. William Atkinson, Minister of Agriculture.

The amount of the sales already made aggregates $692,285. Completed in 1924 the lands had not sell readily under the control of the former Government, while interest charges piled up against the project

PEIPING, China, Aug. 14.—More than a thousand villages are inundated and 3,000 Chinese are believed to be lost following torrential rains in the region between Shanhaikwan and points fifty miles north along the Mukden Railway, which is interrupted.

Two hundred and fifty villages were also flooded, and many lives lost, in Southern Chihli Province, where the rain-swollen Grand Canal broke its banks.

The rains are affecting the warfare on the Shantung front, but General Feng Yu-Hsiang, field commander of the anti-Nanking armies, claims to have captured Kweiteh on the Lungtai Railway, together with a huge quantity of Southern, or Nanking, supplies and artillery.

Hertzog Says South Africa Must Be Free

FUNCHAL, Madeira, Aug. 13.—"I consider that, so far as South Africa is concerned, a paramount issue at the Imperial Conference will be recognition of the independence of the Union," declared the Rt. Hon. James B. Hertzog, Prime Minister of the Union of South Africa, when he landed here today en route to Geneva, where he will attend the Assembly of the League of Nations and afterwards go on to London for the Imperial Conference.

"Under no condition," Premier Hertzog warned, "can I admit of uncertainty regarding South Africa's independent status. When the report of the last Imperial Conference, granting all independent status to our Dominion comes up for confirmation, it must be made clear that the right of South Africa to secede from the Empire is to be maintained."

TRIP IN SKIES IS CONTINUING

Greater St. Louis Endurance Plane Passes 600-Hour Milestone of Test

1,000 HOURS OBJECTIVE

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 14—The endurance plane, Greater St. Louis, whirled over Lambert Field today past the 600-hour milestone of its record flight.

Plane and pilot, Dale (Red) Jackson, and Forest O'Brine had made their home in the sky continuously for 585 hours, more than 24 days, at 4 11 p.m. (C.S.T.). They had put the previous record, that of the Hunter brothers, a day and a half behind them.

The champion sky-riding aviators gave no intimation they would delay from their expressed determination to remain in the air for 1,000 hours, and the faithful motor of the ship showed no weakness.

MORE THAN 1,000 HOURS

Jackson and O'Brine already have put in more than 1,000 hours of endurance flying, 420 hours when they established a world record in July, 1929, and nearly 600 hours this year to retain the championship.

From the moment they exceeded the 584-hour record of the Hunter brothers, they began earning $100 an hour, that sum being promised them by an oil company for the first seventy hours after beating the previous record. Various attractive offers from commercial organizations and some cash donations were among the messages of congratulations.

R-100 Sails for England

The Big British Dirigible Floated Aloft From Her Mooring Mast at St. Hubert Field, Montreal, Wednesday Afternoon—Is Expected to Reach England Late Tonight or Early Saturday Morning.

Dirigible Covers Half Distance on Hop Across Ocean

R-100 May Reach Cardington Tonight or Early Tomorrow Morning—Ship May Return to Canada Next Month and Take Premier Bennett to Imperial Conference in London

Record Eastward Crossing Anticipated

By R. W. DRAUGE
Correspondent for the Associated Press and Reuter's, London.

ABOARD THE AIRSHIP R-100, Aug. 15.—After sailing all day over a sea which looked as smooth as a millpond, with a slight breeze assisting her, the R-100 had covered nearly half the distance between St. Hubert, P.Q., and Cardington, Eng., by midnight (G.M.T.).

Safety, comfort and speed of airship flight are being amply demonstrated on this flight. Early in the afternoon, after flying for fifteen hours, we passed the Canadian Pacific steamship, Empress of Australia, which left Montreal thirty hours ahead of us. The encounter between the airship and the liner was an impressive contact between the new and the old.

TENTATIVE PLANS

According to plans which have been tentatively discussed, the R-100 may return to Canada in September to inaugurate regular transatlantic commercial air travel. Should this be the case, the airship, on her return voyage to England, will carry Premier R. B. Bennett and his colleagues to the Imperial Conference.

Delegates in this way will save valuable time, enjoy a very comfortable journey and learn at first hand the value of air travel and the inevitably of its development in the very near future.

The British dirigible R-100 tonight was sailing over the teasing Atlantic, homeward bound and giving every promise that she would make a record eastward crossing.

MAKING FAST SPEED

So fast was the speed, between seventy-five and ninety miles an hour, that those aboard believed it was possible for the largest airship in the world to reach her home port,

Indian Round-Table Conference, Which Will Attempt to Achieve a Definition of India's Status and Future, Set for Middle of November

By CARROLL BINDER
(Copyright, 1930, by The Chicago Daily News Foreign Service.)

LONDON, Aug. 14—Information concerning the discussions between Mahatma Gandhi and the principal Indian Nationalist leaders in the Yeroda jail received here encourages the belief that the Candidlies will participate in the forthcoming round table conference on India to London this Fall.

These negotiations are understood to centre about the discovery of a formula which will satisfy the extremist president of the Indian National Congress, Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru.

PRESIDENT'S DESIRES

Jawaharlal has long been vacillatingly demanding the complete and immediate independence of India even in these prison discussions he is reported to be contending that any future constitution for India should not be submitted to the British Parliament or people, but should be a purely Indian affair. He objects to participation in the round table

PREMIER TOLMIE TO PRESS FOR FEDERAL AID ON MAJOR DEVELOPMENT IN PROVINCE

B.C. Gov't Submits Seven Major Proposals to Dominion

CHARGED with a mission of vital interest to every section of British Columbia and its peoples, Premier Tolmie left for Ottawa yesterday afternoon to take up with the Canadian Government matters of major importance on which the Province will sell the aid of the Dominion Government. The following proposals are included in the brief that the Premier will take up with the Federal ministry:

1. Action to give a rail outlet from the Peace River district to the Pacific Coast, making use of the Pacific Great Eastern Railway.

2. Co-operation by the Canadian Government in the initial development of the Alaska Highway scheme.

3. Early consideration by the Canadian Government of a scheme of protective tariffs for British Columbia products, particularly those of the farm.

4. Assistance in Canadian trade extension with Australia, particularly in the lumber industry, through the development of preferential tariffs.

5. Assumption by the Canadian Government of the control of provincial relief.

6. Co-ordinated action on unemployment measures sufficient to bring relief in this province to the serious situation likely to arise in the Fall and Winter months.

7. Effective action by the Canadian Government to curb further influx of Doukhobors into British Columbia, together with financial aid for the handling of past uprisings.

CONFERENCE OF BISHOPS TERMINATES

Clarion Call to Humanize Religion and Defend Christian Standard Sounded

BRINGS STIMULUS TO WORLD UNITY PROJECT

Anglican Leaders Denounce War as Incompatible With Teachings of Christ

LAMBETH PALACE, LONDON, Aug. 14.—A clarion call to "humanize religion," to defend the Christian standard of the family, of marriage and sacredness of sex, and to meet squarely and frankly other problems of life, was sounded by the Lambeth Conference of Anglican Bishops which has just concluded its deliberations here.

This afternoon, in the mediaeval guardroom of Lambeth Palace the Archbishop of Canterbury, the conference chairman, discussed the results of the conference as embodied in an encyclical letter and seventy resolutions, containing in all some 70,000 words, considered by the church authorities to be special in the history of the Church of England and challenging to the religious thought of the world.

A CALL TO YOUTH

Other results of the conference are a recognition of the help to religion of the Oxford Group, a call of youth, in its "mental confusion and spiritual hunger."

The conference also brought to light a record of a stimulus to a growing movement toward Christian

TURKS REPULSE KURDS' ATTACK

Gov't Troops Hope to Exterminate Over 3,000 Enemy Tribesmen

MOUNTAIN RANGE IS NEARLY SURROUNDED

ANGORA, Turkey, Aug. 14.—Violent fighting, lasting several hours, has taken place between Turkish Government troops and Kurdish rebels in the Ignbar district, with the Kurds defeated and leaving about sixty of their dead on the field.

The battle, which took place yesterday, was preceded by a sharper engagement around Mount Ararat, in which the Turkish forces are hopeful of exterminating an entire force of some more than 3,000 of the enemy tribesmen.

It was reported today the Agridagh Range was practically surrounded, but that the Turks had not begun their operations around Ararat.

It was expressed belief the Ottoman forces would begin their action at this point about next Wednesday. It was reported also the Kurds near Ararat continue to make desparating attacks on the enveloping Government armies.

B.C. Ships Butter to Hongkong

Following a successful trial shipment of British Columbia fresh milk to the Orient, comes word of a special order for shipment of 100 pounds of prime dairy butter to Hongkong, now being arranged through the department of agriculture. On September 4 the first test shipment of butter within the knowledge of the department will cross the Pacific on an Empress liner for the Far East. If the shipment is successful it will be followed by the opening up of a considerable market for British Columbia butter in the Orient.

Great interest in the milk and butter shipments are being evidenced in the Orient, as the prospect of landing fresh dairy products from this coast has attracted wide attention, and will be developed on an extensive scale if the results warrant such a course.

The butter will be shipped to Hongkong in care of the Canadian trade commissioner at that point. Arrangements for the test were made by Hon. William Atkinson, Minister of Agriculture, this was Henry Rive, British Columbia dairy commissioner, attended to the details, getting in touch with British Columbia dairy producers in arranging to fill the initial order.

SAYS CUT IN IMMIGRATION WAS DECISION

Toronto Newspaper Declares Assistance to Newcomers Will Be Eliminated

WILL END AGREEMENTS WITH RAIL COMPANIES

TORONTO, Aug. 14—The Toronto Globe publishes the following dispatch from its Ottawa correspondent relative to the immigration discussion which took place today in the capital.

"Immigration is to be curtailed to the actual requirements of the provinces, with no newcomers admitted to the Dominion unless they have sufficient capital to support themselves for twelve months. Britishers, settlers will be given the preference, with Scandinavians second.

"The flow from Central and Southern Europe is to be stopped absolutely. Agreements with the Canadian National Railways and the Canadian Pacific Railway, whereby 8,000 farm laborers were recruited in Central Europe this year, have expired and will not be renewed. Under these agreements 10,000 Continental farm workers were brought to Canada in the last three years.

FARM TRAINEES BARRED

"Admission of British farm trainees is to be halted completely next year. Under an agreement with the Canadian Government 1,500 men trained on government farms in the Old Country for work on farms in Canada were arranged for. They were all unmarried men.

"All assisted passage schemes are abandoned and no immigration of any kind will be encouraged. Boys from Britain between the ages of 14 and nineteen inclusive, and British girls between fourteen and seventeen inclusive, will be admitted in limited numbers, provided placement of them is guaranteed by Provincial Governments.

R. B. Bennett, head of the Canadian Ministry at Ottawa.

Closeted with members of his Cabinet almost continuously since early morning yesterday, the Premier remained out the details of his plans, and will present one of the most complete and well-thought-out briefs that has fallen to the lot of any head of a provincial government to lay before the Prime Minister of the country. To the successful completion of Premier Tolmie's mission, matters of the utmost importance to the welfare of the province depend.

Quick Work by Cameron Lumber Company's Plant Quickly Extinguished

Quick response by the fire department checked what might have developed into a disastrous fire at the Cameron Lumber Company plant, Carbally Road, early this morning. Victor Pearson, fireman, on duty, saw the flames breaking up on the inside of the boiler room and immediately summoned aid. Fire fighting equipment from headquarters, Burnside and Victoria West, rushed to the scene. The call was turned in at 12.30 o'clock in the morning.

POLICE BOARD HOLDS REQUEST OF ROTARY TO CONDUCT DRAWING

Having in mind the question of the right of any civic organization to grant permission to any other organisation, association, or club to break the law, the Board of Police Commissioners, at its regular meeting yesterday afternoon, declined to make a ruling in connection with a request from the Victoria Rotary Club through its representative, F. P. McConnell, who appeared before the board, to conduct cash prize drawings.

Mr. McConnell outlined the proposals of the club to raise $6,000 for charitable purposes by staging a four-day show at the Armory in September. In order to facilitate the advance sale of tickets, the club desires permission from the board of to give away $700 in cash prizes, $50 to be drawn for on each night of the show and $500 in gold on the final night, tickets to be numbered.

The commissioners were of the opinion that it was not within the province of the commissioners to grant a privilege to do an unlawful act, and, after a brief discussion, ordered the request tabled for further consideration.

NEW BRIDGE TO BE GREATEST IN WORLD

William F. Filmer, of San Francisco, chairman of the board of directors of the Golden Gate Bridge Syndicate, is a visitor in Victoria for a few days. Mr. Filmer stated that when the Golden Gate Bridge, to cost some thirty-five million dollars, is complete it will be the largest single span bridge in the world. The bridge, he says, will extend from the Presidio at San Francisco to Marin County at Lime Point.

The syndicate plans to make the bridge self-supporting through the toll system, so that the taxpayers of San Francisco will not be asked to contribute to its construction or upkeep. The bridge will be publicly owned by six counties and financed by a bond issue in the amount stated.

HOMELESS ARE AIDED BY RED CROSS SOCIETY

500 Residents of Masson Spend Night on Improvised Beds at Neighbors

REPORT OF WOMAN'S DEATH IS UNFOUNDED

MASSON, Quebec, Aug. 14.—Hundred homeless by the disastrous fire which swept their village Wednesday, destroying more than fifty homes, the parish church, the town hall, fire station, community hall, and many places of business, with a loss estimated at approximately $200,000, more than 500 residents of Masson, Quebec, twenty-one miles from Ottawa, spent last night on improvised beds in the homes of neighbors, and other buildings which survived the conflagration.

APPEALS TO OTTAWA

Appeals for assistance for the fire refugees were made to Ottawa and other points by authorities of the village, but it was impossible for relief to be sent to the place until today, and hundreds without roofs to cover their heads, and many in destitute and nearly all hungry were obliged to shift for themselves and to accept the hospitality of more fortunate residents of the place.

Today action to relieve the situation was taken by the Red Cross Society. Food and clothing was sent here, and efforts may be made to supply tents for the temporary accommodation of the fire victims.

COAL FIRE DANGER

Nightfall closed down over a scene of complete desolation as the dying embers kept firemen busy at the scene of the fire, some which had been erased from the map of the thriving little mill town.

Reports spread by excited villagers that one of the dead residents of the village, Mrs. J. Latrambloise, had died of shock during the holocaust, and that two children were lost, both proved to be unfounded. The aged widow collapsed on the street after rushing from her home, but was resting easily today in a home in the western section of the town which escaped the wrath of the flames.

CROWN LANDS AT SUMAS ARE SELLING FAST

lect. When Hon. S. F. Tolmie took office he promised to use every endeavor to have the area settled. A careful survey of the district was made by the Department of Agriculture, and it was found that in order to induce settlement, there must be a reduction in the land prices. Tenders were called for the sale of the property as a whole, and although bids were solicited from different parts of Canada, none justified the Government in making a sale.

HAS PROVED SUCCESSFUL

It was then decided to engage a firm of estate agents to undertake the disposal of the property under contract with the Government. This has proved highly successful.

To to July 31 last a total of 2,266 acres had been sold to approximately 200 purchasers, for a total price of $651,241, with $136,892, or 23.5 per cent, received in cash. In addition to this, sales awaiting completion involve a further 441 acres, with a sales price of $111,044.

A survey has been made of the townsite in the area, and prospective purchasers are already making arrangements for the erection of new buildings. Five and ten-acre blocks are in much demand, and townsite lots are being negotiated for in numbers.

SOME LARGE TRACTS SOLD

Originally the area was brought to contain some 8,700 acres, but the elimination of such parcels as are situated on the Vedder Mountain has reduced this by 400 acres. Several purchasers have taken on extensive holdings in the Sumas district, comprising parcels of land ranging from $40,000 to $50,000 each.

At the rate Sumas Lake lands are now being purchased the clearing up of the entire sale is expected at an early date. The report is being received with considerable gratification, as involving a belief of early development for the Sumas Lake area, which has long lain idle.

The bugs area was reclaimed after the war by a Liberal Government, and one of the first acts of the Tolmie administration was to set about its disposal, so that some productive use could be made of the area. The land was reclaimed at a computed cost of $4,000,000.

trained in first aid and rescue work—had not proceeded more than a few yards into the deadly atmosphere of the tunnel before they fell unconscious on the rails. Other rescue workers carried them out, only to plunge back into the black interior of the mine.

Now that they are equipped with gas helmets and other apparatus from other rescue stations, the men working in short shifts, are making better progress, but as dense is the afterdamp that even the masks do not altogether prevent the carbon-monoxide reaching their nostrils. Man after man has been sent out in a semi-conscious condition, his place being taken by another volunteer.

It is believed that some hundreds of feet of debris remain to be removed before the rescuers will reach that portion of the mine where the majority of the doomed afternoon shift was at work.

AIR LINES WRECKED

The force of the explosion, it is reported from the pit-head, wrecked the air lines and put the big air compressor out of business. Fresh hose was brought from Princeton, and this was connected to an air fan, which was carried into the mine by the rescue parties. There was a shortage of brattice cloth to direct the air courses and clear the mine. As the workers advanced, extra supplies were rushed from surrounding collieries.

It may be some days before the remote portions of the workings can be been fully explored, according to opinions expressed by experienced miners who have been underground and witnessed the extent of the caving, following the explosion.

Scenes of stark tragedy are to be witnessed on every hand, as wives, mothers, sisters and children of the entrapped men wander from one group of men to another seeking beseeching and imploring assurance that there is still hope. And still time miners belie their own optimism as they say there is still a chance of life existing behind that wall of broken coal and rock and dirt, and they quote rare instances of men having come out of similar tombs after days of imprisonment.

INQUEST HELD

Formal opening of an inquest was held today by Dr. D. McCaffery on the remains of Clifford Llewellyn Smith and Albert Cole, the two bodies recovered in the mine early way Wednesday night. It was found they had succumbed to afterdamp—a painless and quick death. This in itself, together with the fact that the atmosphere farther in was found to be more heavily charged with poison leads to the belief—almost the certainty—that every man but one of the afternoon shift perished.

Clifford A. Smith was main haulman. He was a widower. He formerly lived at Nanaimo, but had been employed at Coalmont for the past nine years. A brother is among the entombed men. Their father resides at Nanaimo.

Albert Cole, nineteen, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Cole, of Lewis Camp, Blackburn.

F. and U. Standish, who are among the missing, are brothers, as are H. and M. Lubarda.

James Dickson, chief inspector of mines, and J. W. Blake Wilson, president of the Coalmont Collieries, Ltd., have arrived from the Coast. Rescue work is being directed by John Biggs, district mine inspector, and George Marrai, mine manager. Inspector Biggs, after six hours underground, has himself breathed out. He declares that it is the worst explosion he has any knowledge of in forty years' experience. John Bennett, manager of the Tulameen Coal Mines, Princeton, and Harry Hopkins, mine owners, Blackburn, are in charge of rescue parties.

Doctors and nurses have been called in from the district and from surrounding country. They are being kept busy attending to rescue workers who have been overcome, and in attending hysterical women who haunt the portals of the mine. Eighteen of the missing men are married.

MIRACULOUS ESCAPES

Harry Vato had a miraculous escape. He was informed that his infant son was critically ill, and left his work to go home an hour before the explosion.

J. Porchella, the only man to come out of the mine that afternoon, he was well up towards the portal. He heard the rumbling. He dropped to the ground to avoid the blast and to take advantage of the fact that ceilings to the earth. He was stunned by the blast, and, recovering, started to crawl back into the mine to take advantage of the fact that he staggered toward the entrance, where he was met by rescuers on their way in.

MINISTER GOES TO SCENE

Having mobilized all the mine rescue resources of the Provincial Government throughout the province to give aid in the efforts of workers to reach the imprisoned miners in the Blakeburn Mine at Coalmont, Hon. W. A. McKenzie, Minister of Mines, left Victoria this morning for the scene of the accident.

All day long the minister kept in touch with his officials and the mine management at Coalmont. He instructed Inspector Strachan, from Fernie, to proceed to the mine with additional gas helmets, augmenting the equipment already sent from Merritt and Princeton.

John Stewart, rescue expert from Nanaimo, was also sent to Coalmont. It was not until he had received the assurance of George Murray, manager of the mine, that further aid was required from outside that the minister left his desk.

He will reach Coalmont early tomorrow morning to be on the ground to offer any further assistance that may be required, or may develop through an emergency.

The minister and Premier Tolmie early wired to the Atlin town, asking that their deep sympathy be expressed to the bereaved families.

plane factory, were crumpled by the blast of wind, the wall killing a workman and his son, who had sought refuge under its shelter. The fire department immediately became busy, and nurses and the hospitals were soon filled. This morning the inhabitants of Aomi, who had been fulling errands of mercy since the second earthquake, visited the injured.

It was an ironic stroke of fate for the little settlement, which had felt the grace land for a big celebration tomorrow in thanksgiving because it had sustained only comparatively little damage in the recent earthquake. After the storm first struck, the people of the damaged suburb flocked to the shrines for prayer while bells rang the knell.

Neapolitans who had been awakened by the electrical storm saw great waves splashing over the sea wall and for a time thought that the disaster which the city escaped during the earthquake had come to a different form.

According to latest reports, however, the central part of the city was not harmed and no basis in the rumors were damaged.

primarily upon the counties and the states themselves, supplemented by the organization and assistance as may be found necessary on the part of the Federal Government.

Four principal methods of relief have agreed upon, namely placing farms privately or where possible with the assistance of state or national agencies; Red Cross assistance; employment, and reduced railway rates for food, feed and livestock.

PLANS TO ORGANIZE

"This relief," the President asserted, "can be achieved fairly and effectively only upon, first, a determination of the country where such assistance is required, and secondly upon a accurate determination of the needs of each family."

To determine such needs, the conference agreed that each governor, if he deemed it necessary, should organize a drought relief committee, headed by a leading citizen and including a state agricultural official, a leading banker, Red Cross and railway representatives, and such others as the situation warrants.

GANDHI AND AIDES MIGHT ATTEND LONDON PARLEY

and demands instead a "peace conference between Indians and Great Britain," in which the British would treat with the Congress as the Government of India.

London understands that Gandhi believes that the Congress should participate in the round table as a group of advancing Indian freedom. He dwells upon the gains of "substance independence," by which is understood Dominion status. According to Gandhi this does not conflict with the basic Congress demand for complete independence, which would be a later stage. By complete independence he means the right to secede from the Empire if the Indians choose.

VIEW IS SUPPORTED

Gandhi's disposition to participate in the round table is supported by Motilal Nehru, Sapru and Jayakar. Mrs. Sarojini Naidu conferred briefly with other Nationalist leaders in prison yesterday. When asked whether she believed Gandhi's view of round table participation and other issues had been squared with the Congress programme, Mrs. Naidu replied: "I have suggested the inclusion of a definite formula for a referendum, after a certain period, of "Dominion status" wherein the Indians would decide whether to remain part of the Empire or not."

That extreme demand is said to be endorsed by the Independent Labor Party here, but it is not likely to carry with the Labor Party. It certainly would be resisted by the Conservatives, who never dream of surrendering India "in advance," as implied by the Mrs. Naidu demand. The Indian round table conference, which will attempt to achieve a definition of India's status and future, is not expected to assemble before the second week of November, although at least fourteen delegates will arrive here three weeks earlier. Among the advance guard will be the noted Maharaja of Patiala, Chancellor of the Chamber of Princes, a man accustomed to conferences. The total number of delegates will approximate hundred. Before the Indian Conference opens the delegates will meet the delegates to the Imperial Conference.

unity throughout the world and the diminution of women to the ministry of the church as far as the Order of Deaconess.

Another important development was the repudiation of war as incompatible with the teaching of Christ, together with a clear pronouncement that "the existence of armaments on their present scale among nations endangers the maintenance of peace." The conference joins in an appeal for a further effort to secure continued reduction of armaments by international agreement.

INTERDEPENDENCE

"There emerged from the conference, as contained in the encyclical letter, the determination that no one should be excluded from worship in any church on account of color or race and that the guiding principle of racial relations should be interdependence and not competition.

The seventh Lambeth Conference is a gathering held every ten years of the bishops of the Anglican churches throughout the world and includes those of the Protestant Episcopal Church of the United States. It was held in Lambeth Palace, the London residence of the Archbishop of Canterbury. Dr. Cosmo Gordon Lang was presided over the sessions with the assistance of the Archbishop of York, Dr. William Temple. The conference lasted over a month.

Almost all of the Canadian bishops were in attendance, twenty-four in number, including Bishop Schofield of the Diocese of Victoria. There were 300 in all. The sessions were held in private, although a brief bulletin was given out each day, giving the subjects discussed and the names of the speakers.

AROUSES GREAT INTEREST

The subject that aroused great interest was the proposal of the Scottish Episcopal Church in unite with the Wesleyan Method-ist of South India, and the South India United Church, which is composed of Presbyterian and Congregationalists.

The conference is not legislative at all. It is purely advisory, but as its judgment is that of the Anglican Canada episcopacy of the world, the findings have a very great influence upon the various national churches, such as the Church of England in

And here's the Reason! Nestlé's Evaporated Milk is just the best of fresh cow's milk with part of the water removed—then sealed and sterilized in air-tight containers. Add water again and you have absolutely pure, rich, fresh milk—the more readily digestible than ordinary milk because the large fat globules of the milk have been broken up into small curds of the same size as in Mother's milk. Also, the curds which form in the stomach when Nestlé's Evaporated Milk is used are soft and flaky and therefore easily digestible.

Use Nestlé's Evaporated Milk for Your Baby. Use it in cooking—in tea, coffee, cocoa. Use it in all cooking and as a Beverage by diluting with one to two parts water.

EMINENT ACTOR SAYS THEATRE WILL NOT DIE

W. Faversham Is Optimistic Regarding Immortality of Legitimate Stage

IS RETURNING FROM TOUR OF ANTIPODES

Among the passengers who were aboard St. Niagara which touched at Kilbride Point last night was William Faversham, the distinguished actor, who is returning to New York after been on tour with Mrs. Faversham in Australia.

Mr. Faversham's work has commanded admiration in all parts of the world for the last quarter of a century. Australia being the only continent where until recently he had not played.

The three plays in which he has traversed in Australia are "Lord and Lady Alix", "The Hawk" and an adaptation of Mark Twain's "The Prince and the Pauper." Mr. Faversham has played innumerable parts, ranging from light comedy to heavy drama, but it is to the latter type, perhaps, that he is best known.

He is returning to New York, where he will immediately start rehearsals for a new play.

THEATRE NOT DEAD

Asked for his opinion regarding the effect upon the legitimate stage of the moving picture industry, Mr. Faversham emphatically rejected the idea that the theatre was dying. "It is something which rates back thousands of years before Christ," he said. "The theatre was used by the ancient Greeks as a means of combining education with amusement. It is an institution which is a part of civilization and which it would be impossible to kill.

"The movies themselves have made wonderful strides; it would be absurd to attempt to deny this; but the theatre provides something which the movies cannot supply."

The chief need of the legitimate theatrical business today, in the opinion of Mr. Faversham, is a system whereby the theatre can be more widely advertised.

AUSTRALIAN IMPRESSIONS

Mr. Faversham said that he had had an exceptionally pleasant time in Australia, although the theatres in that country were few and far between. He had found the people charming in every way, but he noted a decided tendency on their part to avoid work.

"They are far too much inclined to devote all their time to play," said Mr. Faversham. Australia, he added, were aware that England must protect them in her own interests and were apt to trade on this to a great extent.

He deplored the law in Australia whereby it is impossible to send money out of the country and pointed out that this was one of the greatest obstacles to development which faced the country.

CLOSE FINISHES FEATURE REGATTA

Toronto Argos 140-Pound Eights Defeated by Detroit at Canadian Henley

ST. CATHARINES, Ont., Aug. 14.—Honors were widely distributed at the close of the preliminary heats of the forty-eighth annual large regatta of the Canadian Association of Amateur Oarsmen, which was launched under ideal conditions here today.

E. Whipton, of Hamilton, and R. W. Richardson, Winnipeg, share the spotlight in the singles, the latter breezing across the finish line with a fair margin over his three competitors. The winner's time was 7 minutes and 56-5 seconds, against 8 16-5 for Whipton, who finished one length ahead of J. Marantette, Detroit, his lone opponent. Both qualified for the final tomorrow.

Gibson Shaw of Toronto Argonauts, provided an upset in the first heat of the singles to John Rothwell, in the association row-off. Shaw came from far behind to eliminate V. Wahnetz, Detroit, after the latter had held second place safely for the greater part of the course. Rachanel rowed a steady race, taking the lead from the start and successfully staving off the belated challenge of Shaw. The Winnipegger won by two lengths.

A thrilling finish was provided in the first heat of the 140-pound junior eights, when Toronto Argonauts No. 1 crew spurted forward in the last hundred yards, but failed by six feet to overtake the Detroit oarsmen, who had assumed a commanding lead early in the race. St. Catharines was three lengths behind the Toronto entry in winning. Detroit let the fast time of 6 50 1-5.

In the other heat of the junior eights, Buffalo Westsides emerged as victors, with Lachine in second place. The United States crew set a pace too fast for the Argonauts early and Hamilton Leander, although the time was 3 1-5 seconds slower then registered in the first heat.

Lady Willison and Dr. T. Rickard Informally Address Local Writers

FIND VICTORIA CHARMS

A delightful literary atmosphere characterized the "at home" held yesterday afternoon by Mrs. J. B. Angus, Earle Street, Fairfield, when members of the Vancouver Island section of the Canadian Author's Association were invited to meet Lady Willison, of Toronto; Dr. Thomas Rickard, of Berkeley, California, and Mrs. Charles Hume, of Forest Hills, Oregon, who are now visiting the city. All three guests briefly addressed the gathering before tea, and additional pleasure was given when Mrs. Mabel Corbett, accompanied by Mrs. Fred Authors, sang "Dear." The words by the well-known Canadian poet, the late Marjorie Pickthall, and "Tiers's a Little Brown Bird", and Miss Julia Gilbert, of Portland, played one of the movements from her "Chinese suite."

During the formal part of the proceedings the president, Dr. A. O. MacRae, presided, in his introduction speaking a few words of welcome to the guests.

Lady Willison, better known to the literary world of Canada as Marjorie MacMurchy, is the widow of the late Sir John Willison, noted as the editor of Willison's Weekly, and an outstanding Canadian writer. In her delightfully informal little talk she touched on her journalistic and literary associations with Sir John. She was delighted with Victoria, the great charm of its beauty lying in the fact that it was created, not manmade. Here was a natural setting and inspiration for any author, and it was not to be conferred at that late Miss Marjorie Pickthall had done some of her best work here. Lady Willison in this connection compared Marjorie Pickthall and Nellie McClung, both early standing among Canadian women writers, but the former representing the English part of Canada's ancestry, the latter the pioneer settler of Canada.

In conclusion this speaker addressed a special message to any aspiring young writers who might be present. Only by hard work and the utmost sincerity could they hope to succeed.

Dr. Rickard, who modestly disclaimed a right to rank as an author, because, with one exception, his books were of scientific character, also paid tribute to Victoria's beauty by saying that wherever he heard the song, "Land of Heart's Desire," no matter what part of the world he might be in his thoughts invariably turned to Vancouver Island. He had come here for a holiday, but had found in the provincial library a hobby even more entertaining than golf, the literature connecting early navigation and exploration in this part of the world furnishing fascinating material.

The guests were entertained for a few minutes with the results of some of Dr. Rickard's reading, when he told them about the origin of the use of iron by the South Sea Islanders and the Indians on the West Coast. Contrary to popular belief iron had been known to the Indians for many years before the white man came here, having arrived in the form of nails found in floating driftwood and wreckage, and, in two instances, in the form of harpoons found in whales. But it was much prized among the natives that chiefs who owned the nails valued them above all their possessions. Dr. Rickard touched briefly on some of the theories, which Captain Cook entertained as to contribution of the existence of iron among the West Coast Indians, one being that it had filtered through from the Indians of the interior by inter-tribal trading. But this was incorrect.

The last speaker was Mrs. Hume, of Portland, who expressed her gratification at being able to visit a part of Canada, which was closely linked with Oregon's early history. As a member of the Western Writers' League she recalled hearing that Major Bullock-Webster last year in Portland, and also mentioned her associations with Miss Justine Gilbert in the making of travelogue pictures. In conclusion she recited some verses she had composed in honor of Victoria.

Mrs. Ebbe Canavan presided at the tea table, which was decorated with sweet peas and gypsophila and lighted candles.

ANNIVERSARIES

Most of the admirers of the Wizard of the North will agree with the spirit of Mr. W. Hastie Cochrane's recent article in The Colonist on the Sir Walter Scott centenary, which is to be celebrated in 1932. That date is still two years away, but it is not too soon to begin thinking about the matter, and particularly about the way in which the almost universal admiration and affection for Scott, which as Mr. Cochrane has pointed out, possesses such great value as an Empire cementing force, can best express itself.

For a similar reason, and namely, that the jubilee anniversary of the entrance of British Columbia into the Dominion is less than a year distant, it is equally and, indeed, even more necessary that preparations for the event should be made at an early date. It will be remembered that on December Day The Colonist called special attention to the approaching anniversary and suggested that the completion of British Columbia's sixty-year period as a province should be celebrated with fitting ceremony.

British Columbia has played a notable and worthy part in the development of the Dominion during the years between 1871 and the present. For the benefit of the rising generation, which ever needs to be instructed in national history, it is desirable that emphasis should be laid in the coming anniversary upon the advantages which British Columbia has enjoyed as a result of its close political association with the other provinces of British North America and upon the nature and quality of the contributions which this province has made to the economic, political and cultural life of the Dominion and the Empire.

A DANGEROUS BEND

The latest accident on Esquimalt Road, with its tragic ending, draws attention once more to the dangerous character of the bend at the head of Macaulay Street. That bend has been the scene of many accidents, and the Esquimalt Municipality has an undoubted obligation to adopt precautions that will minimize future danger. The road at that point could be widened and banked up in the vicinity of the sidewalk. Stricter regulations should be enforced against speeding. Passengers catching street cars on their way to Victoria have to do so directly in the path of major traffic, a condition which often causes dangerous possibilities owing to the swerving of motor cars. A plan to make this place of roadway safe should be devised by the Esquimalt Council and put into effect without delay. In the meantime speed regulations should be enforced much more strictly than they ever have been in the past.

A MASTER GERMAN

The capable German race has only had three great statesmen in the last 150 years, if we count Herr Stresemann, who died last year. Only one of the two others had his own way. He, Bismarck, led the Germans wrong by leading them into a truit in war. The third was a real statesman, but he was overwhelmed by opportunity. His name was Baron Karl Stein. If he could have had his way the history of Germany during the last hundred years might have been greatly changed for the better. Stein was born on October 26, 1757. He was a Knight of the Holy Roman Empire, which in his day had become unimportant and was about to perish. He forsaw his downfall, renounced his allegiance to it, and took service under Frederick the Great.

Stein was a man with great force of character, abundant energy, and strong trust in himself. He gave the first place in his plans to practical work for extending the business of his adopted country. He studied mining and manufactures, the improvement of roads, and presently became the Minister of Trade in Prussia. He was that the whole system of government must be altered if prosperity was to be obtained. All changes, however, were hampered by the two weak Kings who followed Frederick the Great. When the second of these Kings, Frederick William III, was reigning in Prussia Napoleon was rapidly becoming the conqueror of Europe, and, contrary to Stein's advice, this King tried to curry favor with the rapidly rising enemy. Napoleon played with his as a cat plays with a mouse, and then suddenly pounced and crushed Prussia at the battle of Jena. With Prussia trodden under foot the King turned to Stein and asked him to be Minister of Foreign Affairs, but as Stein wished to improve the system of government the King dismissed him.

The country was in a helpless state, ruined and bankrupt and Frederick William appealed to Napoleon for advice. Napoleon advised him to use Stein, adding that Stein was given a free hand, followed one of the swiftest revivals ever seen in the country. The Prussian peasants were serfs like the Russians. Stein abolished serfdom, established reciprocal trade, reformed the land laws, broke down many foolish class distinctions, brought in a form of local government and reorganized the army. Prussia was reborn. Napoleon at once seemed danger to his own rule. He denounced Stein, had to withdraw the Minister to Austria and then to Russia. When Napoleon was beaten back from his last great attempt on Russia in 1812, it was Stein who helped to keep the Prussian army neutral, though the King was Napoleon's ally. It was he who urged the Russians to keep the French on the run till the last great victory at Leipsic. When, after Napoleon's dethronement, the rulers of Europe met at Vienna to rearrange the Continent it was Stein who took there to plead for a chance for democracy. His ideas were rejected, and Germany has had to wait until this late day for a real chance to become a democratic nation. It is just a century since Baron Karl Stein died.

PROPAGANDA IN UNITED STATES

Dr. Jabez Sunderland, a persistent critic of everything British, has written a book called "India in Bondage," which has attained fame in America[illegible] circles. It is said that the Americans are the world's greatest absorbers of propaganda, a statement which may well be believed for there is a type in that country that is pragmatical to the bone. In any case, public opinion is a kind that takes Dr. Jabez Sunderland to its bosom and gives him that fleeting popularity which sometimes, and by some people, is accorded to those who argue that black is white. One excerpt of many of similar insecurity from his book "India in Bondage," may be quoted. He writes:

"As is well known to every one at all perfectly acquainted with the history of the Great War in Europe, it was the splendid Indian Army brought over with the greatest possible haste to France when war was declared, that turned the tide at the first battle of the Marne, beating back the German advance and saving Paris from capture."

In the interests of historical accuracy and as opposed to the arguments devised for propaganda purposes, it is necessary to point out the enlightenment of those, "not perfectly acquainted with the history of the Great War," that the first battle of the Marne was fought from September 5-11, 1914, at a time when not a single unit of the Indian Army was in France.

BY SUBMARINE TO THE POLE

The minds of explorers are constantly investigating new ways of getting ahead of their competitors in the venturesome business of exploring unknown regions and acquiring new fame. The latest in Polar voyages to be planned is an expedition to the North Pole by submarine. Sir Hubert Wilkins is now in London making arrangements to attempt this feat, the cost of which will be $500,000. His goal is the North Pole by the under-the-ice route. He proposes, as well, to proceed beyond the Pole to Alaska.

Sir Hubert's starting point by submarine will be Spitsbergen, and he figures the voyage from that point to Alaska will be about 2,000 miles, which he hopes to accomplish in fifty days. He estimates the average thickness of the ice he will encounter has reached 10 feet and he will travel under this submerged to a depth of twenty-five feet so as to avoid any spikes of ice. The submarine has been constructed to remain submerged for two and a half days, and in that period progress can be made for twenty-seven miles. The vessel in which the voyage will be made is 275 feet long and of 350 tons. There is to be an expeditionary force of eighteen personnel.

The Irish Free State has legalized sweepstakes for hospitals. In doing this a precedent has been created which it will be hard to escape when equally deserving institutions seek for methods of raising funds. A corollary of the new privilege is the likelihood that the State may itself adopt sweepstakes to aid its revenues. The Irish hospitals now enjoy the advantages of being aided by persons of many lands. Their beneficiaries are not confined to the people of the Irish Free State.

SCOTS PRIME MINISTERS

The manufacture of Prime Ministers is one of the staple industries of Scotland. That vaunt was made by the Prime of Inverness recently. Since the success was the reception as freeman of the Highland city of the present Prime Minister and his predecessor, one a MacDonald by name, the other a MacDonald on the mother side, the Scotsman had better stand gracefully that Caledonia is a mere nurse not only for the poetic child, but for the statesman. The Prince looked beyond the two Highlanders who were married to the Highland capital and claimed an impressive percentage of the Prime Ministers of recent times. Before Mr. Baldwin was Bonar Law, and before him was Arthur Balfour. Scots in grain if by no means Highlanders. Earlier still were Campbell-Bannerman and Rosebery, Scots both, though in temperament little alike. It appears that the Prince claims Gladstone as a complete Scot too, but he, though, as he said, every drop of blood in his veins was Scottish, was born in Lancashire and educated at Eton and Oxford.

What qualities a student of the Scottish character would select as most typically national we do not know; but it will be admitted that these Scots Prime Ministers exhibit some very different habits of mind and feeling. There was a time when the Highlander would not have been recognized by the Lowland Scot as a person for whose character and imagination, to take the Prince's phrase, he had any respect. The Prime Minister himself remarked that the sons of Clan Donald had not always entered Inverness in such an atmosphere of benignity. It is a striking illustration of the way in which the British power has been built up that in the twentieth century two of our Prime Ministers hailed a descent from the wild chieftain of the Lord of the Isles, fierce enemies alternately of England and Scotland.—London Daily Telegraph.

Note and Comment

By R. B. D.

Whilst states war sanction and abuse states
Whilst states war-mad
Whilst earth—and those who dwell on earth—human beings.

—Byron

A very wise and experienced man said a long time ago, "put not your trust in princes." If we were as wise as experienced, it would perhaps be quite safe for us to say at the present time, put not your trust in peoples. There is a tradition born of democracy that all wisdom abides in the common people, that the common people can do no wrong thing. The pith of that aphorism depends upon the application of it. The most perplexing political situation in the world today is the situation in China.

A few years ago when democracy was assumed to have justified itself to the whole world as the last refuge of the oppressed, the downtrodden and the oppressed, a great cry went up from the democrats of the United States and the Dominion of Canada, supported by a demand from their brother Bolshevists of Russia, that Russia should be left to herself. The magical big word self-determination had done its work. Foreigners were withdrawn from China, and the Chinese were left to work out their own political salvation. And the general result seems to be that the Chinese are busy upon self-extermination.

China, like Russia, is a big country, and her peoples are peculiar. It is not an easy matter to determine precisely what is happening in either Russia or China. About one thing that is known with certainty is that there is a government of a sort in Russia, and that that government is administering the public business in a manner that is not strictly democratic in its simplicity.

All that is definitely known about China is that there is no settled form of government there; that every alien force formerly withdrawn from the country anarchy has prevailed; that faction has been fighting faction for supremacy, and that whatever faction has been temporarily supreme has been murdering and plundering the people. Another thing which may be said about China is that internal strife will be succeeded by domestic famine, and that the final condition of the country will be much worse than it ever was when the hated foreigner, in a role that was strictly pacific, wielded a certain influence in the councils of the nation.

We know that the Chinese in this country are a peaceful, industrious, honest and industrious people. We also know that the Chinese in their country are a peaceful, industrious moral people, according to their moral code. The ways of the Chinese at home are not our ways; but we are not so sure that the ways of the Chinese in some ways are better than our ways. In considering these virtues, it is hard to understand why the Chinese in China are so different from the Chinese we know. So we surmise that the difference must be accounted for by the fact that the Chinese are not actually a democratic people and that constant repetition of the mischievous word self-determination has reduced them to a state of mid-Summer madness and that the leaders democracy has set up, or the leaders who have set themselves up in the name of democracy, have taken advantage of their mental state to set them fighting each other like cats and dogs.

However these things may be, or whatever the cause of them, the state of China appears desperately hopeless. The application of democratic principles to the country has resulted in political and economic chaos. There can be no ordered government in the country until either the contending factions have completely exhausted themselves and their resources or the expelled foreigner is called back to restore tranquillity.

The latter resource is of course impossible. Triumphant democracy in countries which are nominally subject to the sublime principles of democracy, but which are by no means models in the science of government, would raise another howl that hands must not be laid upon China.

The demands made a few years ago about China are now being made about India. Resolutions have been introduced in legislative chambers and at public meetings demanding that the British withdraw from India. If the conditions in China have been bad since hands were taken off her, what might be the condition in India if controlling and directing hands were taken off her? For the people of China essentially are not the people of India or not divided into tribes and races, with a long history of tribal, racial and religious wars and feuds behind them. The achievements of democracy to the educated and cultured nations of the world have not been so markedly beneficial to the people concerned as to warrant the application of the principles of complete self-government to hordes of ignorant and superstitious Asiatics.

The Rhyming Optimist

By Aline Michaelis

A SONRAPO

Supremely clear and pure it rises,
This song beyond all silence and harvest,
To some above Earth's and surmises
And dim defeat.

It lifts on its unfaltering pinions
The spirit up to hidden things
Of love, to faith's serene dominions
Its message wings.

The golden flames of candles flutter
Into the darkness where silence came,
The incense drifts while echoes flutter
Sounds pure as flame.

When through the fragrant dimness
ringing,
The music cleaves the silence
there,
It is as though white souls were winging
In lyric prayer.

As though white souls rose up, exploring
Pathways where never men have trod,
Still seeking, in their joyous soaring,
The face of God!

PREMIER TOLMIE TO PRESS FOR AID ON MAJOR DEVELOPMENT

For weeks the work of preparing the B.C. case to lay before the Canadian Government has been going forward, with the co-operation of over departments of the Dominion Government. Cabinet Ministers, during the last few weeks, worked long hours at the legislative buildings, putting final details into shape, and correlating every section of the important file the Premier will lay before Mr. Bennett. Hon. R. H. Pooley, K.C., was named acting premier during the absence of Hon. S. F. Tolmie, and took over the duties yesterday afternoon.

WANT PLACE OUTLINED

Regarded as of first rank importance in the premier's case is the appeal for early action for the taking of constructive steps to give the Peace River district a rail outlet to the Pacific Slope. If this can be done with the use of Pacific Great Eastern Railway grant benefit will accrue to the province. It is felt, Premier Tolmie's plans include direct contacts with both E. W. Beatty, K.C., president of the Canadian Pacific Railway, and Sir Henry Thornton, at the head of the Canadian National Railways.

The railway executives have had before them for some months now the report of the joint survey made by British Columbia, that year to ascertain the resources of the Peace River lands. Definite proposals looking to the construction of the rail link desired have been presented by the province at the conference. Development, colonization, and a greater measure of prosperity would all follow such a policy, it is claimed, this time, it will be urged.

FAVOR ALASKA HIGHWAY

The development of the Alaska highway project, the advisability of which was emphasized to the Premier and members of his Cabinet by the Canadian Legion, will not be declined to appeal a representation to the proposed advisory commission which was to have paved the way for a Dominion of the physical facts of the project. The Bennett administration, it is felt, will be more sympathetic to the issue, and from that angle British Columbia's request will be put forward with greater confidence.

TARIFF PROTECTION

Protective tariffs for the products of B.C. in agricultural, industrial, and commercial circles will be strongly urged on Canadian Government. Commodities which this province raises in abundance are fighting for their life against increasing floods of foreign goods from other lands. Fair and reasonable protection against that unfair competition will be urged, to help restore confidence in the ability of British Columbia producers to turn out first rate products that will have an open chance on their own markets.

Especially, in this true, it is contended, of farm products, which in a very real sense are the backbone of the interior development of the province, and the first means of livelihood for many of its people. Protection from the flooding of B.C.'s natural markets with cheap foreign produce, dumped seasonally ahead of what climatic conditions will permit in local competition, will be most strongly brought forward.

In like sense the expansion of B.C.'s lumber trade with Australia will be pushed, in so far as the voice of the premier will be heard on that subject. Extension of trade with Australia is sought, by any system of preferential tariffs that will be beneficial to both parties, papin, and not work a hardship on other commodities passing between the two continents.

NATIONAL PARK LANDS

National and provincial park areas by the Dominion is a subject that has been cordially taken into sideration between the two governmental bodies for many years, but was halted momentarily by the protest received from the Kootenay Block, including the railway lands. The Premier intends, it is hoped, to have the Dominion parks branch take over the control of such areas as Mount Robson Park, Strathcona Park, and the new West Coast park on Vancouver Island, as national assets.

Unemployment will be thoroughly discussed, from the angle of co-ordinating provincial plans with those of the Dominion, and provision for the provision of any relief that may be afforded through the letting out of public works in the Fall and Winter months. There are, it is another means that appears applicable to the betterment of a situation, that will bear hard on all Canadian provinces, the consideration by the Canadian Government's plans have been made in the matter of the connection, provincial section to connection the general question of repatriating the unemployed.

DOUKHOBOR COLONIES

The whole question of Doukhobor occupation of B.C. lands will come up for discussion. The Premier's provincial conference, "British Columbia's representative prior to the meeting with some angles of the question that it is felt need a readjusted. Restricted immigration to the country of Doukhobor peoples and more effective methods of assimilation these people are, will be phases of the same issue that will be touched on at Ottawa, it is believed.

While these are the main heads under which the case for the province will be based, a host of subsidiary matters are also to be taken up, when time and opportunity is presented. That British Columbia's Premier will receive a cordial and courteous hearing is a certainty, and confidence is expressed in Government circles that the mission will prove of enduring benefit to the province and its peoples as a whole.

Delegation of Lumber and Fish Producers Interview Provincial Cabinet

PROPOSAL IS NOTED

Some uncertainty in Australian trade circles over the future attitude of the Dominion in regard to the trade treaty as it affects the Australian purchase of British Columbia lumber and pulp was drawn to the attention of the Provincial Government this week by a delegation of British Columbia producers. The delegation asked Premier Tolmie to take the matter up with the Dominion authorities.

A. E. McMaster, general manager of the Powell River Company, Hugh Dalton, secretary of the British Columbia Fishermen's Federation, T. T. Gadd, J. H. MacDonald, P. T. Reid and T. H. Wilkinson composed the delegation, which was thanked for its representations.

In a subsequent announcement it was stated Premier Tolmie would discuss Antipodean lumber fish and pulp purchases in British Columbia while talking up with the Canadian Government the general question of trade extension for British Columbia products abroad.

WARNER BROS. STOCK

NEW YORK, Aug. 14.—The board of directors of Warner Brothers Pictures, Inc., have voted to offer common stockholders the right to purchase one new share at $30 a share for each four shares held at the close of business August 1.

It was said in Wall Street circles the offering would provide more than $14,000,000 additional capital, Warner Brothers now holding about 51 share, equivalent to cutting a melon of about $6,000,000.

MAYOR ASKS PUBLIC TO PATRONIZE FAIR

Also Requests That Flags Be Flown on Buildings During Entire Week of Exhibition

In connection with the observance of the fair week in Victoria, Mayor Ascomb has issued an appeal to all citizens to show their appreciation of the efforts of the officers and directors of the British Columbia Agricultural Association in giving this city an exhibition such as will open at the Willows next Monday afternoon, by attending in numbers that will brave a record.

The Mayor says the exhibition is of great value to the city, the district and the province, as it will give an unquestionable example of the possibilities of this section of the Dominion in the development of agriculture, livestock and the natural resources of Vancouver Island. It is the duty of every citizen to patronize the exhibition on one or more days. The officials of the association have given a tremendous amount of energy and attention to the building up of an exhibition worthy of a city the size of Victoria and they should be given every support. It is the duty of the Mayor said.

His Worship also asks that flags be flown from all public buildings, equipped with flag poles, during fair week.

The National Union of Railwaymen, of Britain, will ask for increased wages for lower paid workers.

FIFTY YEARS AGO TODAY

(From The Daily British Colonist, August 15, 1880)

Blackberries are unusually scarce since the Lower Fraser, and the Indians want an extra dollar each for every box they bring.

A railway contractor left a small bit of Scenic ivy home at the Dalles and on Indian potlatch held it displayed to another place. He not are afraid attend the owners and call a white man carrying he chinook without being looked for the chinook. They are also at over carried.

The annual regular meeting of the Provincial Rifle Association lasted from 10 o'clock yesterday morning until 2 o'clock this morning. Lieutenant Gov. Nagle presided and approximately 200 members were present. The Provincial match was very keen, and especially the Victoria and New Westminster teams had only a score of 20 Hundred being lost with 100, and the Royal Marines and Royal Navy teams followed with 100 and 102 respectively.

Electoral Plan to Clarify Reichstag Complexity Drawn

Reform Project Will Go Before German Cabinet, and if Approved, Then Will Be Considered by Reichstag—Sharpness of Campaigning

By EDGAR ANSEL MOWRER
(Copyright, 1930, by The Chicago Daily News Foreign Service.)

BERLIN, Aug. 14.—Under pressure of the coming German election, reform plans which have been carefully shelved for the last few years, are now coming into the open with an almost giddy speed.

For years it has been obvious that a great part of the incapacity of the Reichstag to function satisfactorily has been due to the highly scientific and equally impractical electoral law whereby any party which could raise the requisite 60,000 votes was assured of a seat among the legislators. This has led to a multiplication of parties and splinterings, groups and blocs on a terrifying scale and rendered stable constructive legislation almost impossible.

MIDDLE CLASS PARTIES

But with the election fixed for September 14 and Germany wallowing in the trough of its worst political and economic crisis since the inflation days, the older so-called middle class parties which are ruling today are thoroughly alarmed.

Therefore the various groups are rivaling each other in promises of reform. At the request of the Minister of the Interior, Dr. Joseph Wirth, ministry officials have finally prepared a new electoral law whose purpose is to eliminate the number of the smaller parties in the Reichstag.

Although the plan is still unpublished, I am in position to give the substance. The present thirty-five electoral constituencies will each be simply divided into five.

RESIDUAL VOTES

Residual votes will be swept into a common pool for each group of five and not, as hitherto, first into the so-called state and then into the Reichspool. This will mean a great increase in lost votes, that is to say, votes that are inoperative in electing anybody.

Hitherto the greatest number of votes that could be lost by any party was 50,999, since all residual votes have been lumped together to elect candidates from the so-called Reiche-list. With the Reiche-list abolished, it is obvious that each party will lose an average of 10,000 votes from each of the thirty-five large electoral groups, or a total of more than 1,000,000.

INCREASE IN EFFICIENCY

This means that large well-organized parties will profit immensely at the expense of smaller groups. Only those smaller groups whose votes are concentrated in specific electoral constituencies will be strengthened. This should mean the virtual elimination of at least a half a dozen of the fifteen odd groups which now clutter up the Reichstag and an immense increase in efficiency.

Furthermore, it will reduce the total number of deputies and also it will be impossible for a number of old gentlemen who mostly control the party machinery and select candidates, to put themselves in safe places on the slate or Reichslist. They, like other candidates, will have to fight for re-election. This ought to freshen the political atmosphere and file the city today with more "youth" in the government.

APPEALS TO YOUTH

It is notable how earnestly all the parties are addressing appeals to young people of both sexes. The electoral reform, however, is still only a scheme and will not be operative in the election. It will first go before the cabinet, where it will meet with strong resistance.

If approved by the cabinet, the plan will be laid before the Reichstag, and since it leaves the principle of proportional representation intact, it can be adopted by a simple majority.

Notable is the action of a portion of the Centre Party, which is accepting no candidates except those pledged to the electoral reform.

The prospects are that the new Reichstag will be even less manageable than the last and that, after a short trial period, it will be again dissolved. Then it would be obvious to the country at large that only an electoral reform could resolve the political deadlock and the demand for this revision would be overwhelming.

Notable, also, is the sharpness of the campaigning. As predicted in these dispatches, the present struggle is being conducted with a bitterness hitherto lacking in this energy-saving country. The first important fight occurred at Nuremberg last night and others are sure to follow.

DAWES MAKES TRIP AS ARCHAEOLOGIST

American Ambassador to Court of St. James Will Return to France and Spain

By CARROLL KIMBER
(Copyright, 1930, by The Chicago Daily News Foreign Service.)

LONDON, Aug. 14. — General Charles G. Dawes is revered in a new light to Londoners. The versatile ambassador blossoms out as a student of archaeology.

He leaves soon for a fortnight in the Dordogne region of France, and other regions of France and Spain associated with prehistoric man. He accompanies Addison L. Green chairman of the board, and George Grant MacCurdy, director of the American School of Prehistoric research, on their explorations.

Ambassador Dawes declares that the accomplishments of prehistoric man in the Mediterranean region deserve detailed and co-ordinated study. Mentioning a scrap in an unknown language found in a thousand clay documents in the Cretan Museum and a similar script found in other parts of the Mediterranean, Ambassador Dawes says it proves that we have underrated the age, intelligence and accomplishments of the prehistoric man as well as his industrial and social organization.

"Fascination for the archaeological periods of the Mediterranean," Ambassador Dawes said, "caused a comparative neglect of alone age study in that region. The Minoan, Egyptian, Grecian and Roman civilizations were all preceded by the stone age civilization which may yet prove to be the most interesting of all."

General Dawes will also visit the Rio Tinto mines in Andalusia, Spain, where there are tunnels under clay heaps, indicating laborious chipping with flint tools at copper and silver ledges. The expedition may even visit the ground which some believe to be the site of the mythic "lost continent of Atlantis," which preceded Europe and Asia, the Mayan civilization in Central America are supposed to have been bridged.

Australian Premier to See Canada

MELBOURNE, Aus., Aug. 14.—Rt. Hon. James Scullin, Prime Minister of Australia, intends to visit Canada after he has attended the Imperial Conference in London, he announced today.

Mr. Scullin said his object in visiting the Dominion would be to discuss tariff matters with the Canadian Government.

The Prime Minister declared he would much prefer to remain in Australia rather than attend the Imperial Conference, for there was much work to be done here in view of the country's troublesome financial condition, but he felt it would be an admission of despair to say that Australia's condition was such that it was impossible for either the Prime Minister or attend the Imperial Conference.

CLAIM LIEN ON LINES OF GRAND TRUNK RY

OTTAWA, Aug. 14.—Perpetual preference shareholders of the old Grand Trunk Railway have a prior lien on the Grand Trunk lines in the United States, now a part of the Canadian National Railways, K. C. Hawken, who is in Canada representing the perpetual preference shareholders in Great Britain, said here.

"On November 9, last, a committee representing the stockholders, whose petition lay on the table of the Canadian Government, wrote Sir Henry Thornton," said Mr. Hawken.

"The committee said they held voting stock certificates acquired in lieu of prior lien bonds. These stocks are a perpetual charge on the tolls and earnings of the Grand Trunk lines in Canada and the United States. Our interest could not be transferred to the Canadian Government nor our rights sold without our consent.

"We had the opportunity of passing judgment on the 1916 offer, nor on the 1920 arbitration proposals. The merger of the Grand Trunk with the Canadian National Railways was effected by a wrongful use of our votes without our consent."

France and Jugoslavia Build Border Defences

Two Countries Are Bolstering Fortifications Up to Wartime Strength—French to Use Seventeen New Tanks in Coming Exercises

By WILLIAM H. STONEMAN
(Copyright, 1930, by The Chicago Daily News Foreign Service.)

ROME, Italy, Aug. 14.—News from the Italian frontiers continues to indicate that France and her ally, Jugoslavia, are building border defences up to wartime strength with little consideration for what interpretation Italy may place upon their activities.

French measures on the Italian front, scheduled for late this summer, continue to convince the people on this side of the frontier that the feeling that actual trouble is not on the immediate horizon. Meanwhile, the fact that the Italian press continues to comment on the French manoeuvres extend to the regions of Alta Savoyna and Alta Tarentaise, which were neglected in former years, and that artillery, never before used on this front, as well as tanks, are to be brought into service, creates a feeling that the French are really planning on trouble.

Seventeen new mountain tanks, capable of climbing through mountain passes more than 8,000 feet above sea level, are among those being used by the French in the forthcoming exercises.

Simultaneously comes the information that Jugoslavia is building six new military roads near the frontier, using army reserves as labor. She is also reported to be laying down a new military connecting the main lines with frontier towns.

Six Rescued, When Trapped, By Truck Driver Dashing Through Flames

SHOWERS AID FIGHTERS

SAULT STE. MARIE, Aug. 14. — One man is known to be dead as a result of forest fires raging in this district. George Grabby, sixty, residing near Ralph, died while carrying water to extinguish a fire near his camp.

One hundred and fifty men battling a blaze near the village of Strong on the Michigan side were helped materially by intermittent showers yesterday. Threatened all day by a fire eight miles wide crackling on its outskirts, the village is still safe.

On the Canadian side Algoma is again practically free from bush fires, although a new outbreak appears near Crystal Lake, northwest of the Soo, completely destroyed the bridge. Fires back of Garden River and Batchawana are still smouldering but are under control.

Six men were rescued by a truck driver, Leo Messenger, who plunged through the fire after the men had become trapped in an unprovoked area just north of Thunder Inn while fighting fire there.

On the Michigan side the fire has been brought under control after a week of slashing, the best deer area in Upper Michigan.

Man Finds Forty Dollars in Post Office—Honest

"HONESTY is the best policy," said Mr. Edward O. A. The bills were lying on the floor and attached to them was a slip of paper with the words, "for deposit." Mr. Burgess was given a receipt by the postmaster and the find was reported to the city police.

NEW CHAIRMAN MEETS CABINET

H. B. Thomson Reports for Duty, After Return From London, England

VACANCY IS UNFILLED

H. B. Thomson, chairman-elect of the new Liquor Control Board, confirmed his appointment on his return to Victoria yesterday from London. Mr. Thomson was closeted with the Executive Committee of the forenoon, after reporting his return from London. No announcement was made at the close of the meeting.

The appointment of a third man to complete the board and the date of the new board's taking over control of its duties are still in abeyance. It is understood Mr. Thomson is expected to advise the Government shortly on several matters awaiting determination in connection with the administration of the province's liquor business.

SAYS CONTROL PLAN IN CANADA FAILURE

Bes R. Spence Tells U.S. Institute of Public Affairs Valstead Act Is Success

UNIVERSITY, Va., Aug. 14—Prohibition in Canada is a failure, which prohibition has been warmly debated in the last ten days, was told today the eighteenth amendment is a success, and Canada's liquor control system, about which Americans heard much, is a failure.

The speaker was Ben H. Spence, Washington correspondent for The Toronto Daily Star and sometimes called the "Wayne Wheeler of Canada." He prefaced his address with the statement that one acid test is necessary for all liquor systems, "under which do the people consume the most alcohol."

Were the Canadian system to be put into effect in the States immediately, he said, estimating this country's population to be twice and one-half times that of Canada, the United States would spend nearly $2,500,000,000 a year for liquor, assuming the per capita consumption to be equal.

Government control of liquor in Canada is incorrectly named—it should be Government sale, Spence said. In denying the Canadian liquor system are Government-owned he offered figures showing that of the 9,135 liquor selling establishments in Canada, only 376 are owned and operated by the Government, 4,066 belonging to private concerns.

The Government simply acts as selling agent for the brewers and distillers and purveyor to the drinker," he said.

ELIMINATION OF TRACKS SOUGHT

Are Menace to Safety of Public, Says Reeve Elrick, Esquimalt

BUSES ARE FAVORED

Elimination of the street car tracks and the installation of bus transportation will be sought by Reeve James Elrick, at the regular meeting of the Esquimalt Council Monday night, following the death of John Parry, who succumbed in St. Joseph's Hospital early Wednesday morning after an automobile accident on Esquimalt Road Tuesday night.

In a statement to The Colonist last night, the reeve said that in his opinion the street car tracks were a menace to the safety of the travelling public, and the best move towards making travel more sure would be likely eliminated. At the present time all traffic is kept to one side of the road, with the street car tracks on the other. The tracks are raised above the level of the street. At points where the street is narrow, motorists are forced to leave the road to permit of another passing. With the elimination of the tracks this danger would be done away with, the reeve thought.

At the point where the accident happened which resulted in the death of John Parry and injury to four other men, the road takes a curve to the left when traffic is proceeding eastward, while the surface slopes to the right, making it difficult for a driver to hold his car to the road. The street car tracks are on the north side, making it necessary for all auto traffic to use the south side.

In the last twelve months there has been a number of accidents resulting in property damage, but on July 28

Tuesday's crash was the first in which serious personal injuries resulted.

R. H. Webb, secretary of the Victoria branch of the Automobile Club, stated yesterday that the club

Council asking for immediate improvement of the corner.

DIRIGIBLE COVERS HALF DISTANCE ON HOP ACROSS OCEAN

Cardington, England, by midnight tomorrow, British Summer time (8 p.m. Eastern standard time) it was felt that the dirigible, which left its moorings mast at Montreal at 8:26 p.m., Eastern standard time yesterday, should reach Cardington by 3 a.m., Eastern standard time (Saturday at least, even if held up by winds.

Those aboard are enjoying the flight greatly. When the breakfast of ham and eggs with coffee was served this morning, quite in hotel fashion, they had prepared huge ranges of clouds. The only feature prevent the absolute comfort was the fact that no smoking was permitted.

THE HUNGRY ABSENCES

As darkness fell tonight the electric lights were switched on and a bell summoned the hungry passengers to dinner. Plates of hot soup awaited them in the dining-room. They fell to it without urging. The printed menu cards had been filled, silverware and spoons lines made the scene like Piccadilly or Fifth Avenue rather than middlatitude up in the air.

Through the darkness the great silvery cigar rushed, the first time the Atlantic atmosphere in nightfall has been only by the great moon outside the windows.

The experiment of obtaining water from the clouds proved a great success today.

The airship passed over the Mistaria of Belle Isle as she was maintaining a steady average speed of seventy miles an hour

FIRST EIGHT HOURS

In the first eight hours the ship covered a distance which took it twenty-four to twelve on the westbound voyage.

The pantorama of the Gulf of St. Lawrence north shore was seen from a height of 1,000 feet. The passengers could see an occasional lighthouse, or lonely lighthouse keeper, and hear the salute of sirens above the steady drone of the engines.

Tonight the R-100 was enjoying ideal weather conditions. The wide vista of the calm Atlantic was now the only reminder to the passengers that they were at sea; for the airship was as steady as if she was still at her mooring mast.

IN CARDINGTON

CARDINGTON, England, Aug. 14.—The sturdy and comfortable progress of the British dirigible R-100, on her return flight from Canada, was eagerly watched today by those at her home port here.

The fact that the big airship is making excellent time, despite the fact that one of her six motors is out, is received with jubilation by the city officials who helped create the air liner.

All reports show that the R-100 was speeding eastward with such ease that she might establish a new record for a lighter-than-air crossing in this direction.

tions that poured in at flight headquarters.

Jackson and O'Brine earned about $1,000 when they made their 400-hour flight a year ago, and now they hope to "cash in again."

FAN MAIL ARRIVES

The flyers spent much of today going through fan mail and messages of congratulations which continued to arrive. They took enough time, however, to wire their congratulations to Captain Frank Hawks, who yesterday set a new west-east transcontinental flight record.

One letter, addressed to Mrs. Jackson: "I am sending my felicitations to the one I consider the real heroine of the flight. Any woman who cooks that many consecutive meals is deserving of no less than a citation."

Mrs. O'Brine has been preparing meals for them.

He is attending the San Jose State College, in the South, and has had plenty of track experience while away from home.

Headed by Fred Martelle, the iron man of the squad, the Vancouver contingent will be strong in each race. At the recent Caledonian Games on the Mainland, Martelle won the C.N.R. Martelle weighs around 180 pounds and will be watched in the various events tomorrow.

Miss Lewis, supervisor at the Beacon Hill Park, will give a demonstration of folk dancing with a group of girls from the playground. # WOMAN CHARGED WITH MURDER FOUND DEAD

BARNIA, Ont., Aug. 14. — Mrs. Mary O. Richardson, who was held in custody in jail for two weeks charged with the murder of her mother-in-law, Catherine A. Richardson, seventy-three, was found dead in her cell today. Cause of death is uncertain. Jail officials believe she took a tasteless poison.

Police alleged Mrs. Richardson gave her mother-in-law strychnine on July 18, claiming the aged women's death. Police suspected her of also having something to do with the death of her husband, Clarence O. Richardson, ex-Postmaster Edward Constable, on May 28, 1929, and last Friday exhumed his body and removed several vital organs for analysis.

The accused has been subject to fainting spells. Last Friday she was committed to trial on September 15.

Long Classical Lines Feature New Gowns

ALMOST Grecian in line is the satin evening gown worn by Marion Davies, pictured at the left, above. This shows the trend of the season. The gown is in pearl shade, and the only ornament is a jeweled buckle at the belted waistline. An exceptionally wise beginning for the evening wardrobe of the schoolgirls and the debutante is the Vogue gown at the right, above. Since dull surfaces will make way to allowing the shoulders and a low oval decolletage to back. Shaped circular sections give restrained but fancy to the long, seen skirt. Three pink camelias are added to the waistline, which is one of the smartest gowns is made of antique brocade with a small jewels clasp. It is a small poke bonnet model. Note the open pump in the sketch, which is popular. Sketch is by Vogue.

BOY LEADS POSSE TO BODY OF BROTHER AND ADMITS SHOOTING HIM

McGRATH, Minn., Aug. 14.—A two-day search for eight-year-old Jack Mabley, missing from his home since Monday, was brought to an unexpected climax yesterday when the lad's brother led a posse to the body and admitted having shot him.

Broken down after having directed a posse of 150 men in an opposite direction from his brother's body for two days, Neal Mabley, aged twelve, led a deputy game warden to the body and confessed having shot Jack on Monday "accidentally."

A verdict of "accidental death" was returned after the body was found.

MUST CO-OPERATE TO ATTAIN PEACE

Matt Sawyer, of Port Angeles, Addresses Combined Rotary Clubs

"We are altogether too prone to class foreigners as 'Wops,' 'Chinks,' 'Huns,' and the like, instead of cultivating in ourselves the spirit of tolerance," said Matt Sawyer, a past president of the Port Angeles Rotary Club, in addressing local Rotarians at luncheon at the Empress Hotel.

Over thirty members of the Port Angeles club were entertained at the luncheon and the guests of many members of both clubs were present. Rev. M. W. D. Bruce, president of the Victoria club, welcomed the guests and then handed over the gavel to Fred Brazill, president of the Port Angeles club.

A. Kline performed an exceedingly amusing function as toastmaster, and the community singing was led by Bob Webb.

MR. SAWYER'S ADDRESS

Mr. Sawyer's address, though brief, was inspiring and to the point. He wished his hearers, he said, to consider the sixth object of Rotary, which was to foster and encourage international peace.

It was true that war had now become a subject which the average man avoided thinking about, but it was ridiculous for the nations to hide their heads like so many ostriches and say that there could never be another war.

No government had tried harder to keep a nation out of war than that of President Woodrow Wilson, and the fact that the United States had good info the war was proof that governments could not control situations of this kind.

FAMILY QUARRELS

It was moreover absurd to adopt the theory that war between English speaking peoples was impossible. The speaker noted that family quarrels were generally the bitterest of all, and could not agree with the idea that people of the same tongue and the same blood were never to fight one another.

"If war is to cease," he concluded, "it must be by organized and intelligent effort. For preparations for war we must substitute conscientious preparations for peace."

Missionary Addresses Wilkinson W.M.S.

The Wilkinson Road Women's Missionary Society held a meeting on Tuesday, August 12, at the home of Mrs. J. A. Grant, West Saanich Road, with the president, Mrs. W. Allison, in the chair. The meeting opened by singing "Breathe on me, Breath of God," followed by prayer by the president. The Scripture lesson was read, and Mrs. English, of Victoria, gave a helpful talk on the 139th Psalm. This was followed by a solo, "In the Secret of His Presence," sung by Mrs. Hobden. Miss Verbury, of the African Inland Mission, gave an address, which told of the missionary work already being done and the need for more missionaries in all fields. Reports were given by Miss Barker and Mrs. G. Jones on Christian stewardship and missionary work. Mrs. McLennan, Christian stewardship secretary for the Victoria Presbyterial, gave a short paper on tithing. The hostess served refreshments and a social time was spent.

TOTALIZATORS WILL NOT BE USED AT THE WILLOWS RACE MEET

Failure to come to a settlement of difficulties in connection with the operation of the Australian totalizator for the Willows race meeting, the Colwood Park Association has paid $500 to the Corporation of Victoria in default of their agreement with the city to use the machines if available.

Several hearings between the operating company, the Park Association and the City Council failed to bring about an adjustment of the contentious points, and as the contract with the city was an exchange of racing privileges for the construction of a new grandstand and race track, providing totalizators were used, the agreement carried a penalty of $500 for failure to use the machines. The Park Association decided to pay the penalty and forwarded a cheque to the city treasurer.

In the last fiscal year Great Britain paid out more than $385,000,000 in unemployment relief.

TEAMS CHOSEN FOR MATCHES IN GOLF MEET

International and All-Canada Vs. All-America Squads to Play Today

STRONG LINE-UPS WILL DO BATTLE

Eight Victorians were placed on the international team which will represent Canada this afternoon at the Oak Bay Golf and Country Club against a strong United States squad in one of the special matches held in conjunction with the Seniors' Northwest Golf Association tournament, which is now in progress at the beautiful course.

Skippers J. A. Byerly, Portland, and W. B. Ward, Vancouver, have lined up two formidable teams with hopes of teaming through to victory. Fifteen players will represent each side and some great golf is expected before the winners are declared. The Nichol Cup, symbolic of the honors, was won by the Canadian team last year by a score of 35 to 16.5, and Captain Ward is confident that his squad will make it two in a row, while J. A. Byerly, the American skipper, expects to see the trophy across the border.

The All-America vs. All-Canada match will start as soon as the international match gets under way. R. H. Sweetzer, Victoria, and E. C. Griggs, Tacoma, are the respective captains, and each has strong squads for the battle that, over the line, America contemplates finished on the long end of the score by a three-point margin.

SWINERTON'S TEAM

The international match will start at 1 o'clock and the All-America vs. All-Canada match will commence at 1:45 o'clock. Swinerton's team will be selected from the following: R. S. Fulls, C. D. Tarpell, A. W. Blake, A. J. Fraser, R. B. Beaney, A. S. Robertson, E. C. Beakley, W. E. Tupley, A. C. Plummerfelt, F. P. Todd, H. O. Wilson, General Money, Dr. Prescott, J. R. Griffin, A. McCleary, A. Gennason, Judge Lampman, J. G. Cameron, R. F. Motherland, F. Gardner, J. W. McKay, and F. J. Fulton, Fred Boutton, F. J. Perkins and F. R. Blashford.

All players are asked to be at the first tee on time so they can get all here but eight.

Tacoma Veteran Is Oldest Player At Seniors' Meet

CHARLES H. Hyde, of Tacoma, eighty-three-year-old veteran, is the oldest exponent of the Royal and Ancient game attending the eighth annual tournament of the Seniors' Northwest Golf Association which has been in progress at the Colwood Golf and Country Club since Tuesday. Although not a starter this year, he can be seen each day around the clubhouse playing over the results or renewing old acquaintances. "I will be in the field next year," Mr. Hyde stated yesterday.

CANADIANS TO OPPOSE ELKS' NINE TONIGHT

Great Battle Expected in Second Game of Baseball Play-Offs

NORM FORBES WILL GO TO THE HILLOCK

Lloyd Cann Will Return to Game and Twirl for Sons of Canada

LLOYD Cann, youthful speedball artist, forced out of the baseball picture some six or eight ago through sickness, will return to the play-offs tonight when he parades to the hillock against Norm Forbes, the star pitcher in the second encounter of the final play-offs for the city championship. Manager Jack Curtis, of the Canadians, pinned last night that Cann is good shape and figures he can turn back the flashy andiron crew. The game will get under way at 8:15 o'clock, with Piper and Simpson as umpires.

Norm Forbes, hero of the recent play-off series between the Jokers and the Elks, has been selected by Manager Lorimer to try and put his teammates right back in the pennant fight, and on him are pinned the hopes of the andiron crew in annexing the title. Forbes turned back the hard-hitting Jokers on two occasions, and his teammates figure he can stop the mighty Canadians to pennantville.

In the first game played Monday night, the Sons ran away to a good start by checking in with a 6-4 victory in an interesting seven-inning battle. Tonight they will be out to make it two straight and take a strangehold on the pennant. A win for the Elks will tie up the series.

Davies to Face Tough Opponent This Evening

Local Flash Will Have Hands Full in Ten-Round Main Event Against Detroit Boy at Variety Theatre—Fine Card Lined Up

Albie Davies, flashy local flighter, will be one of the hardest hit of the meteoric career this evening at the Variety Theatre, when he steps through the ropes to meet Kim Atherton, Detroit, in the ten-round main event on Promoter Joe Bayley's boxing show.

The stage is all set and the curtain will rise for the first bout at 8:45 o'clock. Promoter Bayley has lined up a great card, and a packed house is expected to be on hand. Four preliminaries have been arranged with local and outside talent appearing in all of them.

Atherton, who hails from the city made famous by Henry Ford, the motor magnate, is reputed to be one of the hardest-hitting junior lightweights in the game. Since his start in boxing some years ago, Atherton has appeared in about a hundred fights and has dropped but nine decisions, a record to be proud of, to say the least. He has swapped punches with the famous Eddie Mack, rated as one of the gamest lads in the business, and all the other leading lightweights, except Ted Morgan, former world's champion, of Seattle.

For the past week Atherton has been training in the Sound city under the direction of Hal Truxman and Joe Waterman, Seattle matchmakers. His opponent while working out was none other than "Wildcat" Carter, who has appeared before local fans against Tommy Fielding. Atherton will arrive this afternoon and will enter the ring in the best of condition.

Teddy Jenkins, Victoria's fighting fireman, will meet "Spark Plug" Sheard, of Seattle, in the semi-wind-up in what should turn out to be a great fight. In their last mix Beales got the decision after four fast rounds in which both took plenty of punishment.

COMPLETE FIGHT CARD

The complete card follows:

First bout—Four rounds, Woodfield vs. Ford.

Second bout — Four rounds, Franklin Zu Bee, Seattle, vs. Ray Davison.

Main bout—Four rounds, Harry Marshall, Seattle, vs. Tommy Dysdale.

ALBIE DAVIES

Fourth bout—Four rounds, Teddy Jenkins vs. "Spark Plug" Boyd, Bellingham.

Fifth bout—Ten rounds, main event, Albie Davies vs. Kim Atherton, Detroit.

Colwood Course Highly Praised By U.S. Golfers

THAT the Colwood Golf and Country Club is one of the finest inland courses on the continent was emphasized yesterday by the various American golfers attending the eighth annual tournament of the Seniors' Northwest Golf Association. J. A. Byerly, Portland, Josiah Collins, Seattle, and Charles H. Hyde, Tacoma, all stated that the local course is the most beautiful and the finest they have ever played on. Among the list of visitors, several others referred to the fine condition the course was in.

J. A. Byerly, Portland, and J. H. Fuller, Aberdeen, will battle it out this morning at the Colwood Golf and Country Club for the grand championship of the seniors' Northwest Golf Association as a result of their spectacular victories in the semi-finals over W. W. Miller, Seattle, and C. M. Birnie, Victoria, respectively. Byerly displayed some great golf to eliminate Miller, 6 and 5, while the Aberdeen golfer used his clubs to good advantage to win from his local opponent, 4 and 3.

The couple will start off at 8:30 o'clock over the eighteen-hole route to decide who will succeed to the throne which has been occupied by J. E. "Joe" Wilson, Victoria Golf Club, for the past two years. Wilson passed from the picture in the second round at the hands of Josiah Collins, Seattle, a former champion, who in turn was eliminated by C. M. Birnie, Birnie, the home local hope, succumbed before the great playing of Fuller yesterday after a stiff battle.

All Victorians passed from the picture in the semi-final round of championships and J. E. Wilson, beaten by L. A. Lewis, Victoria, the winner of the title in 1926, in the first flight.

The tournament will come to an end today with the finals of the various championships and flights and the continuation of the bogey competition. The International and All-Canada vs. All-America matches are scheduled this afternoon, while the grand finale of the meet will be held this evening at the Union Club in the way of a banquet, at 6:30 o'clock the distribution of prizes, except the grand championship trophy, and the four class cups, will be presented. The remainder of the presentations will take place at the annual banquet.

A GREAT BATTLE

The Fuller-Birnie match held the spotlight yesterday as the Victorian fought stubbornly throughout and went down to defeat fight-ing with all the courage he possessed. Birnie started off hotly and lost the first two holes. The Victorian played good golf to slice the visitor's lead by winning the third hole. Fuller also conceded the seventh hole to square the match, but won the next two, and the pair rounded the halfway mark with the Aberdeen player 2 up.

Birnie sent his tee shot out of bounds on the tenth and went three down. However, the Victorian continued the battle by caging a putt three at the eleventh to win the hole. Despite the fact that he had lots of trouble on the long hole, Fuller managed to gain a half in three. Birnie hooked his drive at this hole but approached deadly to get his five.

After putting his second shot in the lake Birnie commenced the thirteenth. Fuller was on in two and putted out for a par four. The fourteenth was halved in par fives after Birnie had placed a nice mashie niblick to the pin. The match ended on the short 17th tenth when the hole was halved in four. Birnie hooked his drive into the hole after putting his tee shot on the carpet. Fuller was marooned from the mat but recovered and gained a half in three.

BYERLY SHINES

Putting and approaching with unerring accuracy, J. A. Byerly accounted for W. W. Miller in grand style. The Portlander was handling his bag of clubs with masterly precision and came out on the homeward journey holding a 3 up lead. Shooting the same brand of golf as he displayed on the first nine, Byerly ended the match on the sixteenth green. Finishing the round out Byerly scored six to one of the best rounds of the tourney. He play yesterday makes him a strong favorite to come through to the title today, although he will have to fight to the finish to do so.

Eugene Boice, Spokane, and E. J. Roberts, from the same city, will battle it out for the Class "A" championship, while W. L. Bilger, Seattle, and H. R. Crowe, Victoria, are billed to meet in the finals of the "B" championship. Some of the four United States invaders played already and fell to reach the last round.

R. B. Cartier, Ashford, Washington, will face W. L. Rhodes, Seattle, in the finals of the Class "C" and R. B. Buckmaster, Tacoma, and Wells Corbett, Portland, will meet for the Class "D" championship. Captain Langley, Seattle, the hot favorite for the "C" title, failed from the tournament by dropping the decision to W. L. Rhodes after the pair traversed the twenty-first hole. Langley, who started out the day looking like a champion, was somewhat off his game, while his opponent was shooting great golf to win after two extra holes.

LEWIS PLAYS WELL

L. A. Lewis mashied and putted his way to a great win over J. E. Wilson in the semi-final of the first flight. The Royal City entrant handled his putter with deadly accuracy, while his mashie behaved in great style to defeat last year's ruler. Lewis will meet W. A. Ward, Vancouver, in the finals. Ward won from J. R. Waghorn, Vancouver, 4 and 3.

Several Victorians are in the finals of the flights and some of the prize awards are expected to be left in the Capital City.

Nelson Parker, Seattle, captured the Class "E" honors by routing the nine holes in 35, the best of the tournament. Captain W. Langley and C. P. Swigert, of Seattle and Portland respectively, shared the putting laurels Wednesday with scores of 34 each.

The winners of the long-driving competition "A" Class, Eugene Boice, 217 yards; "B" Class, L. A. Lewis, 227 yards; "C" Class, W. A. Ward, 216 yards, and A. Coles, "D" Class, 192 yards. Play will continue today in the bogey competition, as the final ball winners will also be named.

C'mon Fans! Let's Have Your Guess

By AL DEMAREST
(Former Pitcher, New York Giants.)

How will the home run race come out this year? Will Babe Ruth's injured hand slow him up or will he bang it a new record of circuit clouts for future sluggers to shoot at?

Lou Gehrig, the crown prince of the Bronx, is a good year and making a determined bang at the record.

Jimmy Foxx and Simmons of the Athletics and Klein of the Phillies are clouters from the City of Brotherly Love who are giving the Bronx bombers of the Dodgers, Berger of the Boston Braves, Chuck Wilson and Hartnett of the Cubs, Babe Herman of the Dodgers, Morgan of the Cleveland Indians, and Ott of the Giants are all hitting too high and far away.

I am going to ask the fans just how many home runs they think these sluggers will hit this year.

Mark the number of home runs you think they will hit opposite their names in the above ballot and mail to me in care of this paper. In the near future I will announce the result.

It will be interesting to compare the result of the fans' vote with their actual total next Fall.

EXPLANATION FOR YESTERDAY'S RIPLEY CARTOON

Robert Manning and His Horse Jumped Over a Dining Table—Manning performed this feat as a result of a dare by a group of friends. After ascending a long stairway, horse and rider leaped over one of the dining tables without upsetting it. The Sporting Monthly hailed this feat with a great deal of enthusiasm.

It Takes Two Years to Make a Billiard Ball—Billiard balls must be perfect in shape, size, weight and smoothness or they are valueless. When the balls are made from ivory the rough-shaped ivory block is kept in a seasoning room for at least a year, and another year of the most painstaking seasoning is required after the block has been cut to approximately its ultimate size. When the balls are made from cheese the time required for seasoning and shaping is practically the same.

DROPPING OF CHAPMAN IS CRITICIZED

Newspaper Says Overthrow of Ex-Skipper Like Exhibition of Hysteria

FORMER AUSTRALIAN CAPTAIN IS CAUSTIC

LONDON, Aug. 14.—On the dropping of A. P. F. Chapman, who capitained the English cricket eleven so successfully in Australia in 1926-30, from the English test team by the selection committee, evoked a chorus of variant comments from yesterday's press here.

The Morning Post, writing in The Morning Post, says nobody will feel more sympathy with Chapman than the selectors themselves, but remarks that sentiment cannot enter into the choice of the English eleven and the individual cannot be considered.

"Under Wyatt we can rely on sound, steady generalship," says Warner.

The Daily Herald believes that the overthrow of Chapman at this time after he had won the first match of the tests in England this Summer appears perilously like an exhibition of hysteria.

Chapman himself was interviewed by The Daily Mail and he said:

"I am frankly at a loss to understand why I have been dropped. If the real reason is that England's batting needs strengthening, I might, perhaps, be accused for indulging in a rueful smile. Though a smile of any kind just now is farthest from my thoughts. But with all my heart I wish Wyatt and the team success."

SYDNEY, Australia, Aug. 14.—(Canadian Press Cable, via Reuters)—In a lengthy review of the performances and agreement of the members of the cricket test teams, Noble, the former Australian captain, writes in The Sydney Sun:

"The rejection of Chapman seems wholly inexplicable. He scored well in previous test matches and made a timely century when the first ball of his team failed. He has played as a sheer and sound batter and as a match winner combined his beautiful fielding has been one of the sights of the season."

Mr. Spring explained that there would be play-offs at Edmonton or Calgary on August 23 and at Winnipeg on August 30 and 31 for the Toronto game being played on August 30 and Labor Day, September 1.

The council decided to make a contribution of $500 and a further donation of $250 if the team was successful in the play-offs and had to proceed to Toronto.

HERMAN FURNISHES BIG SIX FIREWORKS

Robins' Slugger Raises Batting Average to .365—Giants Members Lose Ground

In a day of light action, Babe Herman furnished most of the interest in the Big Six batting list as he continued his drive after first place, with Terry and Klein both kept idle by the weather. Herman gained a point on each of his leading rivals by hitting twice in four times at bat to lift his average to .365. Although he lost ground, Lou Gehrig regained the American League batting lead by a small margin over Al Simmons, who had a greater loss. Simmons went to bat twice without getting a hit, while Gehrig made one safe blow in four times up. Babe Ruth's mark remained at .363 as he hit once in three times up.

WORK STARTS ON REFITTING SHAMROCK V

Lipton's Yacht Expected to Be Ready for Tests Within Ten Days

FITTING TOPMAST WILL BE DIFFICULT

NEW LONDON, Conn., Aug. 14.—The task of preparing the Shamrock V, Sir Thomas Lipton's newest challenger for the America's Cup, began today at the Electric Boat Works yards.

She is the fifth challenger the doughty Sir Tom has sent across the Atlantic in quest of a trophy won by the yacht America in 1851. Originally, the cup cost 100 guineas. Today, if it were not for the "cole mug" it glamorous history, no centuries pawnbroker would loan $50 on it. Yet four or five millions will have been spent this year because of it, when Sir Thomas sails away in the Fall, victorious or numbering his fifth defeat.

All superfluous fittings must be stripped from the Shamrock V before she is ready to cross the starting line off Newport, R.I., September 13, against a defender yet to be selected from four American candidates. There fittings include the crew's living accommodations during her stay here. The crew will be quartered at Killarney, a former excursion seat which has been fitted out for them, and painted to the taste of the old Irish knight—a brilliant green and white.

The most difficult and important task in connection with the Shamrock V's fittings will be the putting in place of the top of her 163-foot mast. She came across under jury rig, toting only about 110 feet of her two-piece spar. The other shorter section must now be raised aloft and fitted much as a fishing pole is put together.

Sir Thomas is expected to arrive in New York on a liner next Saturday. His private yacht, the Erin, will steam there to meet him and bring him here.

The best officials estimate that they will have the challenger ready for the water again in a week or two.

LOCAL CHAMPS WILL JOURNEY TO VANCOUVER

Victoria Pennant Winners Will Open B.C. Play-Offs on Mainland

SECOND AND THIRD GAMES CARDED HERE

Sons of Canada and Elks Fighting for Right to Make Trip

BRITISH Columbia baseball play-offs between Victoria and Vancouver will open on the Mainland during the week of August 23, according to information received here last night from Stanley V. Smith, secretary of the provincial body. It was previously arranged to play two games here, in view of the fact that Fraser Mills appeared in a twin bill here last season, officials of the Vancouver League have requested that Victoria make one trip to the Mainland. The second and third games will be played here.

Four clubs, Sons of Canada and Elks of this city, and Vancouver Athletic Club and Premier of Vancouver are at present fighting for the right to represent their respective leagues in the play-offs. The local series opened on Wednesday night, when the Canadians scored a 5-4 victory over the Elks, while the Vancouver series will get under way Saturday with the Firemen opposing the V.A.C. The local champions are declared by a three out of five game series, while the Mainlanders play four out of six.

Palm of Right Hand Should Face Flag
PLACE CORNER OF FLAG TALLING ON SHOULDER
RIGHT HAND UNDER LEFT ARM AND HELD UP YOUR SALUTE
THE RED CROSS FLAG
If you tend to grip your golf club with the palm of the right hand a little, this leather grip shown can stay where it belongs. It has nothing to hold it over the right side. Hence, out it goes when you take the club back and you're pretty nearly bound to slice.
Denny Shute, who won the Los Angeles Open without once getting into a sand trap in seventy-two holes of medal play (a world's record) should say, gets his right a bit more on top of the shaft. It makes for far better control.
So when you apply your right hand, see to it that it is set that is a position where the palm faces the flag you are trying to reach. You won't stray far from line if you do, as such a grip holds down the backswing and also keeps the right elbow where it belongs. To-morrow—Hagen and his head-work.

WHEN I AM OLD

When I am old—some day—if one proves old
Who does not count the days nor mind the years—
When I am weary and the story's told
With all its drabness, beauty, thrills and fears—

Perhaps in some lone corner I can dream
Of all that I have seen along the way,
And bring again the fires that flash and gleam
From some old contest or remembered fray.

It may be Dempsey making William yield
To shaping fists that left their trail of gore;
It may be Red Grange drifting down the field
Like some gray phantom on his way to score—

It may be magic from the ancient green
As Bobby Jones gras out to make the pin,
And far away old echoes skim serene
With rolling thunder as the putt drops in.

It may be Ruth or Hagen—who can say?
It may be any name that means a theme—
For those who follow sport can have their day
Long after eyes are dim and night is near.

THE CARNERA MYSTERY

There are two widely separated schools in regard to the fighting ability of one, Primo Carnera, whose shadow has been waving back and forth from one ocean to another.

There are those who rate him as a big man that can't fight a lick. There are the others who believe he can step any man now in the fighting trade over a fifteen-round route.

Carnera is still a mystery. Maybe he can fight a lot and maybe he can't fight at all when he is shoved out on his own against something approaching class. He can get a real test against Jack Sharkey unless one of those fouls wrecks the show in one of the early rounds. If this fight is put on either the spectators should be given their money back in case of foul, or else no fouls should be allowed after the manner of the New York ruling. Otherwise you can bet about 5 to 1 on the foul taking place in one way or another.

All in all it seems to be about time that Carnera was put to some test to show about where he belongs. The fact that such a test would draw in more money than any other pair could possibly draw is a fair tip that it will be given a trial. If Carnera is chopped down, the highly profitable security will come to an end. But the chopping will be well paid for at the gate.

THE WARMER RACE

As Babe Ruth puts it—"the Cubs must pick up a good lead through the rest of August if they are to win. They will be on the road most of September with the Giants and Dodgers at home in a much better position to finish down the stretch."

If the Cubs can bump off the Dodgers and the Giants in Chicago, they will be big favorites for they now have five good pitchers who seem to have settled back to earth.

The Dodgers have already thrown away enough ball games to be right or ten battles out in front. Ragged fielding and still more ragged base running have shown that pitching and hitting are not everything. After winding up with Cincinnati, the Giants will be at St. Louis with the Phillies in Chicago. This gives the Cubs a chance to extend their margin as far as the Giants are concerned.

The main problem the Dodgers and Giants face is to hang on close enough to the front to have at least some chance left when they get home.

The $10,000 St. Paul open, which starts on Friday, will be one of the most interesting money tournaments of the year. It will have most of the leading pros on hand, and among them will be Horton Smith, who is a sharpshooter when they bang up a bank roll on the range.

ON LOSING A CUP

There is at least a fair chance that in the art of dragging a number of cups across from Great Britain, we may soon have one taken back. It is no part of a certainty that Miss Betty Nuthall, the young English star, can step her way through the field at Forest Hills next week, but she has an excellent chance—especially so if she can come upon anything approaching her best game.

This will be the most open of all the women's tennis championships and therefore the most interesting. There will be no one woman control as there has been for so many years. There will be a scramble all the way, and it will take greater steadiness than most of them have shown to keep Miss Nuthall from removing one of our home-slaying bowls.

This is the time of the year when about 4,000,000 golfers have suddenly discovered something that adds thirty yards to their drives. And then some day it will rain again.

Large Block of Giants' Stock Changes Hands

NEW YORK, Aug. 14.—J. Henry McNally, New York contractor, who is said to have laid some 20,000,000 brks in the course of a long and active career, has become the second largest stockholder of the New York Giants. McNally has bought the stock of William F. Kenny, who held 20 per cent and by other purchases increased his holdings from 1 per cent to 20 per cent.

Charles A. Stoneham, president of the club, controls more than 50 per cent of the stock.

TREATMENT OF OILS IS ESSENTIAL THING

Good lubricating oils for automobiles are made, not found, according to the almost unanimous opinion of 104 professors of organic chemistry in American universities, gathered by the New York University bureau of business research. The information gleaned is that the source of lubricating oils is not important provided they are treated by the proper process. It is to the public's advantage, therefore, to patronize the reputable oil companies.

The development of the high compression automotive engine has put greater and greater demands upon the lubricating industry, but, according to the authorities on organic chemistry, the industry has responded by establishing the massive over crudes and proving its ability to work its will with them.

TILDEN WALKS OFF COURT IN RYE TOURNEY

Heckling of Crowd Displeases Veteran U.S. Tennis Star

FRANCIS HUNTER LOSES IN SINGLES

RYE, N.Y., Aug. 14.—Big Bill Tilden took his turbulent personality out of the Eastern grass courts tournament tournament today, when he withdrew from the defence of his title in a match with Clifford Sutter, intercollegiate champion from New Orleans.

The youthful Tulane University star had won the first set, 8-1, and second set when Big Bill took offence at the heckling of the crowd which packed the way into the bleachers at the Westchester Country Club, and left the court.

After the match Tilden refused to discuss the showing on a bad leg, although he fell yesterday and was under a masseur's care two hours before taking the court today.

After a short rest Tilden took the court with his doubles partner, Francis T. Hunter, of New Rochelle, but the veteran combination lost to Keith Gledhill, Santa Barbara, Cal., and Ellsworth Vines, Jr., Pasadena, Cal., national junior doubles champion. The score was 6-2, 4-6, 6-4, and placed the youthful West Coast pair in the semi-finals.

Hunter also lost in his singles match, falling before Johnny Van Ryn, East Orange, N.J., 6-1, 6-2.

Gregory Mangin, of Newark, N.J., and Berkley Bell, of Austin, Texas, were the other favorites to come through to the semi-final.

The survivors in women's singles today were the two Californians, Miss Marjorie Gladman, Santa Monica, and Miss Helen Marlowe, of Los Angeles, the Italian entry, Baroness Giacomo Levi, of Rome, and Miss Louise Zinke, of Cincinnati.

A foreign threat appeared in the men's doubles when H. O. N. Lee and S. J. Perry, of England, defeated Fritz Mercur, of Bethlehem, Pa., and J. Gilbert Hall, of South Orange, N.J., 6-1, 6-2.

STOTT THIRD IN CANADIAN TITLE DIVING

Victoria Boy Wins Place on Team for Empire Games

MONTREAL SWIMMER SETS NEW RECORDS

TORONTO, Aug. 14. — Alfred Phillips, Toronto, won the high diving championship last night, repeated with an easy victory in the spring board event tonight. Cyril Brunsil, also of Toronto, was ranked second, while Arthur Stott, Victoria, B.C., was placed third. The three won places on the Canadian team for the Empire Games.

Irene Pirie, of the Toronto Dolphinettes, won the women's 100-yard title.

In the 100-yard back stroke, Marjorie Linton, also a member of the Dolphinettes, scored an easy victory. Marjory Shannon was adjudged the winner in the women's high diving event.

The speed demons, Munro Bourne, of the Montreal A.A.A., and a sixteen-year-old rating Toronto star, George Burleigh, dominated the programme, which served the dual purpose of producing national title-holders and the personnel of the aquatic team to represent Canada at the British Empire Games. Both Bourne and Burleigh were named as members.

The Montreal swimmer gave warning that he will be a worthy contender for the Empire 200-yard crown. Over this distance tonight he flashed his greatest speed, and it was good enough to accomplish a new Canadian record, 3 mins. 11 2-5 secs., bettering the old mark by 1 2-5 secs. But Bourne was forced to extend himself to the limit to offset the gallant challenge of young Burleigh, who finished a close second.

In addition to his 200-yard effort, Burleigh added to his laurels by winning the one-mile championship. Cutting through the water with an easy but powerful stroke, the Toronto youth glided into a commanding lead and easily defeated his nearest competitors, Ernest Bennett and James Thompson, of Toronto. Burleigh captured the 400-yard event last night.

The 100-yard back stroke race was the most thrilling of the night. At first Bourne was announced as the winner, but the judges later desired the event a dead heat. Murray Griffin, of the Toronto Central Y.M.C.A., sharing honors with the Montreal star. The championship will be determined in a race to be held at a later date.

MRS. ERICKSON REACHES FINALS IN NET TOURNEY

Defeats Miss Wiley in Three-Set Match in Women's Singles at J.B.A.A. Meet

OTHER MATCHES ARE KEENLY CONTESTED

Mrs. William Erickson reached the finals of the women's singles championship in the J.B.A.A. Tennis Club tournament yesterday by her brilliant victory over Miss Wiley after one of the greatest battles of the meet. The match ended after three hard-fought sets, the first of which went to extra games.

Despite the fact that Mrs. Erickson wielded her racquet with deadly accuracy, Miss Wiley fought stubbornly throughout and dropped the decision after forcing her opponent into extra sessions. Miss Wiley rallied through the first set to win out, 6-8, but the victor displayed her form in the last two sets to win both, 8-4, 6-2.

In the other feature match of the day, Miss Sams and Hall combined brilliantly to oust Miss Pearce and Speck in the mixed doubles in straight sets. The winners copped the initial set, 6-4, and unloosed some fine tennis to capture the second set, 6-3. Miss Fox and Elliott won another three-set affair from Miss Tyrer and Kirkwood, 4-6, 6-1, 6-1.

The tennis committee met yesterday and decided that all players who arrived late for their matches in finals will be forced to default.

CHIEF TO GIVE RECEIPTS FOR FINES AS PAID

Police Head States Liberty Is Man's Best Form of Security

COMMISSIONERS MEET IN REGULAR SESSION

Chief of Police John Fry will be required to give receipts for fines paid to him prior to the opening of regular police court, if he takes cognizance of a resolution passed at the regular monthly meeting of the Board of Police Commissioners held at the City Hall yesterday afternoon, requesting him to do so.

Although members of the commission were agreed that no harm would be done if receipts were given when asked for, Chief Fry was firm in his contention that a man's liberty was his best receipt. The question of receipts was raised by Commissioner McGavin, who stated he had received a complaint from a minister who had not been able to secure a receipt on the payment of a fine of $5 for parking too long in one place contrary to the traffic regulations.

Commissioner McGavin stated he resented it somewhat that he was not making any charges against the administration of the department, but did not want anyone on the outside to cast any reflections on the Chief or any member of his staff that fines paid were likely to find their way into other than the proper channels.

It transpired during the friendly discussion that Chief Fry had been more or less "pinch hitting" for that class of offenders who would much prefer paying a fine, in advance, to going into public court.

It was the general opinion that Chief Fry had been simply extending courtesy to persons summoned on minor charges by accepting fines "out of court." The resolution was not passed with any idea of mistrust, but as a request from the commission to avoid any unpleasantness with patrons of the police court.

TRAFFIC CHANGES

A great deal of the time of yesterday afternoon's session was taken up with alterations to traffic regulations. A fully signed petition was received from business establishments on View Street between Government and Broad, asking that no angle parking be permitted. A recommendation will go forward in accordance with the wishes of the petitioners. Chief Fry's recommendations in connection with parking near the new Canadian National wharf were adopted.

A resolution, of some importance to motor drivers, was passed demanding that all drivers of motor vehicles give signal by horn or hand when intending to leave a curb to enter traffic zones.

Commissioner Stansfield's resolution recommending better lighting facilities on Yates Street between Cook and Government, was carried.

A letter concerning the parking of bus line coaches in the area bounded by the Parliament Buildings, Canadian Pacific Railway depot and the Canadian Pacific at the meeting, but no action was taken, and the letter was ordered laid on the table for further consideration.

A tender for the supply of meals to prisoners was awarded to the Popular Restaurant. The price was 25 cents per meal.

CHIEF'S MONTHLY REPORT

During July, considered one of the busiest months of the year in point of auto traffic, there were only 144 traffic accidents reported to the Police Department, according to the monthly report of the Chief of Police tabled at the meeting yesterday.

Of this number 114 were accidents due to auto in collision, and from all accidents there were only seven persons seriously injured and eight slightly injured. There were no deaths.

The Chief also reported on the activities of the police during the month. The report showed sixty-five persons convicted, two sent for trial, two detained for unsound mind and twenty held for safe keeping. Total fines collected in July amounted to $1,205.

INMATES OF HOME ENJOY EXCURSION ON EDMONDS FERRY

The last function of the season for the inmates of the Old Men's Home was held on Wednesday, when they were taken on an excursion by the Victoria-Edmonds ferry to Edmonds and return.

The majority of the inmates were able to attend and also a number of outside visitors were present, among them Alderman and Mrs. Baker, Alderman and Mrs. Peden, Mrs. Havard, the North and Fred Lackley. Although Mayor Anacomb was not able to accompany the party he was at the dock to see them off.

The excursion was conducted by George Havard and financed out of the city appropriation for entertainment. Lunch and supper were served on board and the captain and crew did everything possible to entertain their guests. The excursionists were afforded a hour's stay at Edmonds, during which time they were shown around the town. The steamer arrived back at Victoria at 10 o'clock and all returned home satisfied with a good day's outing.

Among donations for the comfort of the guests were tally-ho transportation by the Blue Line stages, refreshments from the Canada Spring, and cigars from E. A. Morris, Ltd., through the courtesy of Joe North.

Time was passed away during the trips with songs and recitations. Among those contributing were Larry Brunnell, John Lindsay and Giles Morris.

ANSWER TO YESTERDAY'S PUZZLE

At The Playhouses

CAPITOL THEATRE. Legitimate business enterprises often mask the movements of the modern gangsters. An insurance agency with palatial offices in a city skyscraper forms the "home" office for a crowd of gangsters in the Universal production, "Czar of Broadway," which opened yesterday at the Capital Theatre for a three-day run. Throughout this story of the underworld is a romance between a young reporter and an entertainer in one of the many speakeasies. The young reporter who is on the trail of a big gangster story, becomes involved in a train of circumstances that appear to be impossible for him to endure.

PLAYHOUSE THEATRE. A roadshow attraction that will establish new records is "Flight," the Columbia all-talking aviation film, now showing at the Playhouse Theatre, with Jack Holt, Lila Lee and Ralph Graves in the leading roles. Frank R. Chora directed. It is the climax of the screen's air dramas. A powerful story of love and honor is the lives of two buddies in the flying division of the United States Marine Corps. It is replete with daring action and thrilling moments. The love interest running through the breath-taking situations is vivid and realistic.

COLUMBIA THEATRE. What is the supreme love? Is there a greater demonstration of affection in actually dying for another person under stress of great emotion or excitement, or in cooly and dispassionately assuming blame for another's crime, and cheerfully undergoing the risk of imprisonment or execution? These questions are shortly presented in "The Argyle Case," the remarkable detective story in which Thomas Meighan is now to be seen and heard at the Columbia Theatre, his first talking picture.

DOMINION THEATRE. What Lindbergh is doing for aviation, Charles "Buddy" Rogers is doing for entertainment—in "Safety in Numbers," the modern music-comedy-romance at the Dominion Theatre today and Saturday. Here is the amusement element that "Buddy" revels in, the type of picture that singles him out as an ace of versatility. "Safety in Numbers" is slightly reminiscent of "Close Harmony"—but it is a far superior to that picture of the early days of talkies that a comparison is unfair. In fact, "Safety in Numbers" is far and away superior to any of the screen musical romances that have ever been produced.

British War Song Hits Keynote in "The Dawn Patrol"

An old British war song of unusual dramatic vigor is heard in "The Dawn Patrol," the First National-Vitaphone production starring Richard Barthelmess, which comes to the Capitol Theatre on Monday for six days.

The song, lifted bodily from war days, hits the keynote of the picture and offers the theme of the tragic adventures of a group of "schoolboy flyers" in the early years of the World War. It is sung in the officers' mess hall by Johnny Murray and joined in the chorus by a score of male voices. It is called "Stand by Your Glasses, Lads."

Howard Hawks directed "The Dawn Patrol," which is based on a screen story by John Monk Saunders. Barthelmess is supported by a brilliant cast including Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., Neil Hamilton, Clyde Cook, Gardner James and others.

Final Adjournment

Joe Wah, charged with stealing from a Chinese store a cheque and also $119, was remanded yesterday in the city police court until Tuesday next, in order to allow his counsel to get in touch with relatives if possible. The case is to go on Tuesday without further adjournment, it was agreed.

"FULL TIDE"

By HERBERT GALWAY

(Author of "Mark Burford's Heir," "Miss Nobody," "The Squire of Redderby," Etc.)

CHAPTER VII

During the second week after her husband's disappearance, Diana determined to see Sir James Arden at all costs. Whatever his father thought, she was Tony's wife and she had a right to know where he was.

"I'm sorry, but Sir James is too busy to see anyone," said Mrs. Smaith, when she met Diana in the morning room.

"He will not be too busy to see me," said the girl, as she paled slightly.

"It must be very important. May I ask—"

"Yes, it is important. It concerns his son, my husband."

"That is more unfortunate still. I understand that Sir James—"

"I insist on seeing him!" replied Diana quietly, but with heaving bosom.

"What do you know about Tony?" asked Mrs. Smaith, an uneasy light in her eyes.

"Nothing! I have come to inquire."

"This is neither the time nor the place to come for any news. We have heard nothing, and Sir James is upset, and must not be worried. I'm sorry, but—" Mrs. Smaith was about to press the bell when Diana stood in front of her.

"I'm not going," she replied, "until I have seen Tony's father. You say you know nothing. Your son told me he had heard from my husband, and if he has heard, Sir James must have heard as well, and—and—I am not going till I see him!"

Before the elder woman could reply a manservant came to the open door and asked if there was anything she could do, prefacing with:

"I want you to tell this ex—woman to get hoised Mrs. Smaith. She describes herself as—"

"I am the wife of Sir James' son," interrupted Diana, speaking rapidly and holding up her hand as if to command silence. "Mrs. Smaith knows very well who I am, although she pretends not to. Tony is missing—or at least I have heard nothing since he went away—and I want to see Sir James and—"

Overcome with emotion and breathless with excitement, the girl paused for a moment to recover her composure. Without looking at the elder woman, the man listened sympathetically to Diana's outburst and saw the sorrow in her beautiful eyes.

"Come with me, Mrs. Arden, I will ask Sir James to see you," he said quietly. Mrs. Smaith opened her mouth to speak at such defiance, but closed it without a word.

The old ironmaster was annoyed when the servant knocked at the door and ceremoniously announced Mrs. Arden, but the protest he was about to make died on his lips as he saw Diana.

With her shapely head erect, sparkling eyes and pale face except for two eloquent bright spots on her cheeks, she was the primitive woman in quest of her mate.

Sir James gazed at her for nearly half a minute, and there was admiration in his eyes.

"So you are my son's wife?" he said at length when the girl was seated.

"Yes, and—"

"I congratulate him I'm sure! Now what have you come to tell me?" he went on not unkindly.

"I have come to ask, not to tell," burst out Diana. "I have come to ask if you have heard from Tony and if you can tell me where he is."

"No, he went to the Orient Iron Company, and—"

"Yes, yes, I know that; but I have heard nothing from him!"

Sir James Arden sat up in his lounge chair with a jerk. "Not heard? But my nephew says he has heard. I'll—wait a moment." The old man pressed a bell on the table, and when the rings was answered he gave orders for Mr. Jasper to be sent to him at once.

"He is not in at present, Sir James," was the reply; "he is at the office."

"Well, telephone there now and ask him to come immediately. No, never mind—" he broke off. "I'll speak to him myself."

The telephone was in the next room, and with a brief apology Sir James hobbled towards it.

"Is that Black & Down?" he called. "I want to speak to Mr. Smaith."

There was a pause.

"Is that you, Jasper? I'm speaking from home.

"Yes, of course. Don't you recognize my voice? Er—yes. Very important. Tony's wife is here asking about him. She hasn't heard yet. Can you bring along the letter you have? Eh? If you can find it, of course. Anyway, you'll remember what it said. All right. We'll expect you along in half an hour!"

Sir James hung up the receiver and walked slowly back into the room where Diana was sitting, a sadness in her beautiful eyes that made the old man regret his earlier outburst with his son.

"You have had no letter or message of any kind from Tony?" he asked sympathetically.

"Not a line," murmured Diana.

"Strange, remarkably strange! and yet he has written to Jasper, so he tells me, saying that he had arrived safely and liked the people at the Orient Ironworks."

Diana wiped her eyes with a ridiculously small handkerchief, and said that it was a comfort to know he had reached there. "But—but—" she concluded with a sob in her shaking voice. "I wish he'd written, and—and—" The tears brimmed over, and she could say no more.

"There, there! troubled Sir James "I know what business men are, and although it was thoughtless of the boy, I expect you'll hear in a day or so now."

Diana could not reply, she sat in the deep chair gazing at the carpet, and thought about many, many things.

Conversation in the incumstances was difficult, and the cheerful the old man was considerably relieved when a maid announced the arrival of Mr. Jasper.

There was an anxious look in Smaith's inscrutative eyes when he entered the room. He bowed from one to the other mmrrrogatively, then allowed his gaze to rest on the tearful face of Diana.

"Have you brought the letter?" asked Sir James without any preliminaries.

"What letter, uncle?"

"From Tony, the one you received after he arrived."

"No, I'm sorry I destroyed it. I did not think there was any need to keep it, as I felt sure both you and—er—Diana had heard."

"I really ought to have written myself," explained Sir James to Diana in a tone of apology, "but I thought a Business Man's Business pilloe would be good for the boy."

"Yes!" There was a long pause as the young wife said the simple word. Tony was a world of meaning in it, and it went home to the Scotsman's Rubber with a force he would never have believed possible.

"But wasn't the—er—head of this place—the Orient Ironworks—an old friend of yours? Surely he might have written to say that Tony had arrived safely."

"I don't think he knew Sir James' address at the time," interpected Smaith, "because when he wrote to me he asked for it!"

"Didn't you send it?" asked the girl flashing an angry glance at the sallow face starting at her with intense fixity.

"I received this telegram as I was going to write this morning," he said with a peculiar gleam in his usually muddy eyes.

The message read.

"Your friend from Orient Ironworks fell overboard and drowned on Tuesday night!"

Diana's face was suddenly drained of all color. "I don't understand," she whispered. "What was he doing on a ship?"

Jasper Smaith shrugged his shoulders with a gesture that was meant to speak volumes.

For one moment Diana gazed at him with frozen horror, then she slipped to the floor, a lifeless heap.

CHAPTER VIII

When Diana recovered from her swoon, she stared at one in a stupor. The shock had numbed her senses and she appeared incapable of consecutive thought.

"Dead!" she whispered. "Did you my Tony was dead? My Tony, my husband!"

"That's what the message says, I am sorry to say."

"But what was he doing on a ship? He went to the Orient Ironworks. I don't understand!"

With a face as grey as ashes, Sir James Arden turned to his nephew.

"My daughter is quite—" he paused a hand caressingly on the girl's head as he spoke the endearing word. "My daughter is quite right. I also would like to know what Tony was doing on a ship. That was surely no part of his duty."

"I know no more than you do—uncle," answered Jasper Smaith in a low voice. "After I had written making the appointment for him it was no concern of mine to see—"

"Surely it was your business to know something about the firm he was going to!" began Diana.

"I cannot be expected to look after Tony. I did what I could. I arranged the interview with the managing director—who, I understand, was his father's friend and—"

"Quite true, quite true," murmured Sir James sadly. "I suppose I expected too much, and I did not inquire as I should have done. You see, I haven't seen this man for some years, and it is only through you that I know he was interested in the Orient Ironworks. As he has not written, I suppose he has forgotten my address, though I thought he would have remembered the name."

"Yes, I am very sorry," said Jasper, "The whole thing is unsatisfactory, and it has taught me a lesson I shall never forget. This comes of going out of my way to help a relative and—"

"But you can't blame Tony!" began Diana in hot defence of her husband.

"Don't be angry with me, please!" he interrupted. "I'm afraid my dear cousin has been the victim of foul play. He was always very headstrong and there are peculiar characters in Limehouse."

"Do you think he was—murdered?"

"No, I don't; but I think there is a possibility that he was—er—lured on to the ship."

"Lured?" Diana stared in puzzled wondering. "They—lured! I don't believe it! But there were haunting shadows in the crystal depths of her eyes as a horrible, a terrible suspicion tugged at her heart. She swayed a little and gripped the sides of the chair as she spoke.

Suddenly she burst into tears—sobbing tears that spoke eloquently of her awful agony.

"I—I'm going home!" she sobbed. And without another word the heartbroken girl left the house.

HUDSON'S BAY STORE ADDS COFFEE SHOPPE

Quick Order Luncheon-Room Finished in Excellent Style to Cater to Trade

The Hudson's Bay Company has added to its well-appointed store in this city what is expected to afford a great convenience to shoppers at this emporium and to the general public. This is the "Coffee Shoppe," located alongside of the grocetaria, in the basement of the store.

Up to date in all its equipment, the Coffee Shoppe is designed to meet the demand for quick order luncheon and refreshment requirements of the public. It is capable of taking care of sixty persons at one time, and the equipment is such that it will prove a very convenient place for ladies to partake of light refreshments during the shopping hours in the store. Alongside of it is a little resteurom which can be utilized while waiting for friends to carry out appointments.

In the equipping of the Coffee Shoppe nothing has been spared in the way of conveniences which will facilitate the serving and make for the comfort of the patrons as well as maintaining the food in first-class condition.

Frigidaire equipment keeps right at hand the supplies which require that class of storage. On the other hand, there are just as conveniently placed the sanitary containers used in the keeping in prime condition of the soups and other dishes which are served hot.

The various flavors used in the preparation of drinks at the fountain are drawn off in frigid condition by simply pressing a button. Mechanical contrivances are everywhere in place to obviate any necessity for handling the food.

In the construction of the tables, an arrangement has been carried out by which these are placed permanently in a horseshoe shape. In the construction, Formica, a new preparation, has been utilized for the edges of the tables, this being the first use of this material west of Toronto. This new material is fireproof. Fire will not mark it, so that, even if a lighted match is allowed to burn on it, the material will show no mark or stain.

The chairs, finished in mahogany which are used throughout the Coffee Shoppe are of the ordinary dining-room chair height. While metal metal is used in parts of the equipment, use has been made of chromium plate in connection with the fountain equipment.

Automatic toasters, which can be set to bring the toast under electric heat to any stage of toasting desired and which cut the bread off and eject the toast at the right time, are installed. The cutting of the bread for sandwiches and all other purposes is done by selling the equipment: at any thickness desired, the machine doing the rest. The carbonizing of the water used in the drinks is done in the plant under electric power at the rate of thirty gallons an hour.

Airy and convenient, the Shoppe is a most attractive place for quick service. It is to be open during business hours in the store, from 9 o'clock in the morning until 6 o'clock in the afternoon.

Until the advent of Contract, defensive bids, or over-calls, were of but two types. First, the direct over-call showing a preference to play the hand at suit named, or possibly at a second suit to be named later should the hand be of a two-suited type. Second, an informative double, showing a hand better than average as to high cards and well able to support any responsive bid by partner, or make a safe independent bid of own should partner's response be unsatisfactory.

While we had prescribed minimums for such bids, there was no means of showing that the actual holding might greatly exceed such prescribed minimums.

Share in Contract a game cannot be scored unless bid for, it becomes necessary for a defensive bidder, holding values greatly in excess of the minimum, to convey to partner the fact that the bidding should be kept open if his hand contains any potential trick taking value whatever.

With such a type of hand, it is not to be expected that partner could give a voluntary assist to a direct over-call or make a voluntary bid of a suit over a jump assist, should an informative double or made.

As with initial forcing bid of two, the forcing defensive bid may be made with a four-card suit. In fact, the supposition that any response by partner can be taken care of would indicate that forcing defensive bidder held but four of his suit, or a two-suiter. In the latter case, of course, the desire to have the bidding kept open would be to enable him to show such second suit.

While the above deal is exceptional in its distribution, it offers an excellent example of that type where a jump bid by Third Hand would effectively shut out the East and West game should a mere minimum be shown by West as an overcall of South's opening bid of one Heart.

Should West bid one Spade or make an informative double, North should jump the bid to four Hearts, and although East holds six Spades in his hand, he would not be justified in giving three assists, or making an independent bid of four Spades. West, of course, could not retaid his four-card Spade suit up to four and would have to be content with a business double, which, although successful, would be comparatively unremunerative.

SALIENT POINTS OF THE BIDDING

Contract: South opens the bidding with one Heart. West makes a forcing overcall of two Spades. North jumps the Heart bid to four. In view of the character of West's bid, East can read him as probably needing trump support, since he must have high quick tricks values outside the Spades in order to justify a forcing defensive bid. He accordingly bids four Spades, concluding the bidding.

Auction: South opens the bidding with one Heart. Although the forcing original bid of two has become fairly well established at Auction, the forcing over-call has not, so that in ordinary company an informative double, rather than a forcing defensive bid, should be made.

Where players have come to an agreement, the forcing defensive bid would be recommended at Auction as well as at Contract, but opponents should, of course, be informed beforehand that such a convention was in use.

West doubling, North bids four Hearts. East and South pass and West doubles, concluding the bidding.

THE PLAY

Contract: (Four Spades)—There is practically nothing to the play except the establishment of two Club tricks before both the Ace and King of Diamonds have been taken out of West's hand. East and West take the Ace of Hearts and the Ace of Clubs, making five odd.

Auction: (Four Hearts doubled) —North and South must lose two Clubs and two Diamonds, but being set one is really a great saving on the hand.

NATIONAL PARK IS THREATENED BY NEW FIRES

Great Reserve in North Saskatchewan Being Attacked by Fresh Outbreaks

CUTS WIDE SWATH AS CREWS LOSE CONTROL

PRINCE ALBERT, Aug. 14.—Subdued after cutting a swath through fifteen square miles of Prince Albert National Park, wind-driven flames on the Lake La Vallee blaze broke loose again today. The fires swept northward north of the park boundary. Crews of approximately sixty men were concentrated along the northern limits of the park in an effort to prevent the roaring blaze from ravaging the beautiful timber surrounding the shore of the park lake.

Until the wind changed to the west, the fire was considered under control, after a stiff battle of a week by combined fire-fighting squadrons of the forestry and park departments. Success against the flame-scourge was short lived, for the scorching breeze from the west quickly whipped smouldering embers into a raging fury, which leaped all main-roads barriers.

RAIN NOW ESSENTIAL

At last reports, the fires were raging furiously eastward through the tree-tops of spruce and pine. To-days weather reports indicate a change for the worse in prevailing conditions. Rain is now considered essential if the more or more outbreaks in the expansive forest area in Northern Saskatchewan are to be subdued.

Radio weather reports, too, brought unwelcome news of a rising barometer, clear skies, high winds and a scorching sun, rapidly reducing pitfecting bush growth to dry tinder as fodder for the flames.

Radio dispatches added another blaze to the already lengthy list this morning, when they told of an extensive outbreak at Mudin Lake, thirty miles away from Lac La Ronge. Flames raced through an extensive timber area and leaped White Moose Lake.

OTHER FIRES BREAK OUT

The draft created by the roaring inferno, coupled with the driving breeze, is spreading "spot fires" throughout the timber area adjoining the main blaze, and valiant fighters in the smiling head are forced to divert their attention from the main outbreak to these smaller blaze.

Parts of the area are inaccessible to both canoe and plane, and these have to be left to the mercy of the elements.

The hard-pressed forestry se vice has rushed as many men as can be spared to this hazardous area.

While all outbreaks to date are in uninhabitated forest areas in Saskatchewan's hinterland and no settlements are endangered, it is feared the loss to timber stands will be extensive.

Immigration Policy to Be Known Today

OTTAWA, Aug. 14.—The policy which the Government will adopt with regard to immigration will be made public here tomorrow, declared Hon. Wesley A. Gordon, Minister of Immigration, tonight. Mr. Gordon would not divulge the nature of the announcements, but it is believed here that recent sessions of the Privy Council have resulted in the formulation of a policy devised to restrict to the barest minimum all immigration except from the United Kingdom.

Indications were that the railways agreement of 1927 would not be renewed on its expiration in October and that certain other immigration aids would be discontinued.

WOMAN JOURNALIST VISITING VICTORIA

Lady Willison Spending Several Weeks Here After Many Years' Absence

One of Canada's most noted women journalists, Lady Willison, or, as she is better known to fellow scribes, Marjory MacMurchy, is visiting the city for three or four weeks as a guest at the Empress Hotel. Lady Willison's home is in Toronto, and she has not been here since before the war, so she finds many changes in the city itself, although its surroundings are little altered. Born in Toronto, she is an ardent Canadian, and believes that there is still a wealth of unlouched subject matter for the pen of Canadian writers. The beauty and history of the Pacific Coast, like the Great Lakes should, she thinks, furnish splendid material for some of the romances of the future.

She herself has had a prolific pen, among her best-known books being "The Woman Bless Her," and "The Child's House." In "The New Era in Canada," published in 1917, she wrote the chapter on "Women and the Nation," and for "The Times Book of Canada, published in 1920, she furnished the chapter on "Journalism and Literature." For many years she supplied book reviews for The Toronto News, and was special correspondent for a number of Canadian newspapers at the time of King George's Coronation. In addition to her purely literary work she has done a great deal along the lines of social welfare, and was one of the secretaries of the commission on unemployment appointed by the Ontario Government in 1915, and in 1918 was in charge of the women's department of the Canadian Reconstruction Association.

All women journalists and newspaper women in Canada have happy remembrances of Lady Willison as president of the Canadian Women's Press Club in the years immediately preceding the war, and her place among the senior branch of the profession was recognized when she was created honorary president, an office which she held until 1923.

Lady Willison was one of the guests of honor at a reception and tea held yesterday at the home of the secretary of the Authors' Association, when members of the local organization were given an opportunity of meeting her.

FOUR ATTEMPT LONG JOURNEY FROM ARCTIC TO HAVANA BY CANOE

BURLINGTON, Iowa, Aug. 14.—Three Eskimos and their Canadian guide, who left the Arctic Circle last year and hope to reach Cuba next year, resumed their journey by canoe today, after an overnight stop at Burlington.

The Eskimos, Charles Planinsfek and his two sons, led by Frank O'Grady, said they left The Pas, Man., March 31, 1928, went to the Arctic Circle, returned to The Pas and then set out for the South last Winter by dogsled.

They continued by sled, they said, until the ice broke up. At Grenfell Falls, Minn., they launched their eighteen-foot canoe and have travled by that mode since. They expect to reach Havana early in 1931.

Nothing but an internal medicine can do this—that's why suffering and salves fail. Dr. J. S. Leonhard discovered a real internal Pile remedy. After prescribing it for 1,000 patients with success in 980 cases, he named it HEM-ROID. # DELEGATES TO ASSEMBLY OF LEAGUE NAMED

Sir R. L. Borden, Senator Chapais and Hon. Irene Parlby Will Attend

REPRESENT DOMINION AT GENEVA SESSIONS

OTTAWA, Aug. 14.—Canada will be represented at the next meeting of the Assembly of the League of Nations by Sir Robert Borden, Senator Thomas Chapais and Hon. Mrs. Mary Irene Parlby, it was announced here tonight.

The Assembly meets in Geneva early in September, and before that there will be a meeting of the Council of the League. Canada's representative on the council will be Sir Robert Borden as leader of the Canadian delegation.

Sir Robert Borden, Canada's wartime Premier, has long been a staunch advocate of the league. He was one of the original signatories of the League of Nations Covenant in 1919 out of which grew the league's assembly and the council.

Senator Chapais, who resides in Quebec, has won distinction by his historical writings. He is the author of a number of books. He was for some time professor of history in Laval University. He was a minister without portfolio in the Tailon Government in Quebec and leader of the Government in the Legislative Council back in 1922. He became a Senator in 1919.

Hon. Mrs. Mary Irene Parlby is minister without portfolio in the Alberta Provincial Government. She represents Lacombe in the Legislature. She was provincial president of the United Farm Women of Alberta for four years. For two years she was a member of the board of governors of Alberta University. In the last two provincial general elections she had been returned as a candidate of the United Farmers of Alberta.

RAILWAY WAGE CUT IN BRITAIN IS FORESEEN

Contained Reductions in Staff Predicted if Lower Scale Not Accepted in November

LONDON, Aug. 14.—The British railway trades unions are gravely concerned over the continuous reductions of staffs which have taken place throughout the country, now is the prospect of a 2 1-2 per cent cut in wages moored for November, to the liking of the men.

The unions submitted a year ago to a 2 1-2 per cent reduction of wages. This amount was restored to the men in many cases with the understanding that the action would be reviewed in November. The men consequently are faced with the problem of whether to insist upon retention of the old wage scale, which would almost certainly result in further reductions in staffs, or to acquiesce in the retrocession of the decrease, in order to help stop the diminution in the numbers of those employed.

The Railway Clerks' Association is disturbed at the staff-combing process proceeding at headquarters and in district offices, where they claim that men who would soon be entitled to superannuation are being asked to antedate their retirement.

It is learned that the new wage programme favored by the unions and involving the wages of more than 100,000 of the lowest paid workers from November onwards, includes a minimum adult wage of 50 shillings a week. The National Union of Railwaymen will shortly submit their recommendations to the employers. Among the other things desired are a week's holiday with pay, for stoppagetors who are without recognized holidays now.

FINANCE - COMMERCE - MARKETS

Three Outstanding Stocks Sell Downward During Day; Leading Bond Issues Gain

NEW YORK, Aug. 14.—The speculative pulse fluttered feebly on the stock market today, but it remained in the hands of the bears. It was the short interest that provided most of the activity, covering and selling alternately throughout an inconclusive session which saw a turnover of only 1,520,000 shares. The close was irregular. Many of the leading shares were virtually unchanged.

Shares of three companies were particularly weak. Canadian Pacific, which has been steadily sold during the past week, tumbled 10½ points to 167½, another new low.

Republic Steel was freely offered for Wall Street is sceptical about the 54 annual return to the stockholders, in view of the large expenditures indicated in the organization of the company several months ago, and the current low rate of operations.

The third weak spot was International Paper, all of whose shares touched their lowest figures of the year, in expectation of an unfavorable earnings statement.

Otherwise, the market seemed governed by the passing speculative expediency.

The cut in copper, although not followed by the producers, carried the price to the lowest in years, and again drew attention to the generally unsatisfactory condition of the industry. The news was accompanied by breaks of one to two points in the copper shares, Kennecott and American Metal touching new minimums.

Merchandising and rail shares firmed considerably. There was isolated heaviness in some of the utilities and specialties.

A rally of half a cent an ounce in silver improved Far Eastern exchanges, but the European rates were easy.

Quickened interest in domestic investment issues tended to lift the bond market out of its midsummer trading rut today. The railroad section was strong and provided the leadership for the advance which carried the list upward to duplicate its recently established new high in the averages.

Canadian National Railways 5's, of October, 1969. Chicago, Northwestern 3's, Chesapeake & Ohio 4½'s, Detroit River Tunnel 4½'s, Louisville & Nashville 4's, New York Central 4's of 1934, Virginian Railway 5's, Norfolk & Western Divisional 4's, Pennsylvania 4½'s, Consolidated 4's and Western Maryland 4's were pushed into new high ground for the year.

Good buying came into the market for some of the telephone and electric bonds in the utility section.

Fluctuations To Continue For Present

Wide Swings Are Seen Likely Because of Short Covering

(Mason & Diespecker)

NEW YORK, Aug. 15.—Whitney, of Wall Street Financial Bureau, says: Yesterday's market brought forth both the moderate extension of the previous day's rally, and the recession which it was anticipated would follow it later in the day. This recession simply represents a more or less temporary weakening of the technical position as a result of the rampant type of advance the previous day, which registered the net accomplishment of scaring off a large per cent of the shorts, which had assumed record proportions.

In spite of this reduction, there are plenty still left, and I believe the near future will witness more days of the type we saw last Wednesday, with the result that the market, as gauged by the Dow Jones industrial averages, should register enough additional advance to account for about ten more points in this index.

Following this, we will have completed what I believe will represent the first phase of advance from the recent bottom around 210, with the normal sequence of market movements then calling for a recession back to approximately previous levels. It is at that point and time that I believe we will witness what will perhaps be the most interesting conflict between now and the end of the year, in that it will constitute a place in the market where we will have a materially reduced, if not completely eliminated, short interest on the one hand and the quality of real buying orders, which, on the other hand, represent the degree of confidence of banking and business leaders in a favorable Fall outlook. It is at this point that I think the market will receive its real test, and that with the survival of it we will be able to put behind us any further bleak of decline in 1930.

In the meantime, I expect the market to continue the process of absorbing tail-end business depression news, with today's contribution being a new low price in copper metal and some moderate recessions in finished steel prices. The actual and tangible evidences of a business turn, which the market is waiting for, will undoubtedly present themselves, or at least be known to those carefully scrutinizing conditions, by the time they are needed when the above mentioned testing period brings on the necessity for some concerted buying. The actual breaking up of the recent protracted drought obviously contributes added stimulus to the reasons why these buying orders will appear.

The procedure, therefore, at the moment is to have nothing to do with the short side, and wait from day to day for the time when the appearance of real buying, instead of short covering, establishes the bottom for a general advance.

TORONTO MINING NEWS

(Mason & Diespecker)

TORONTO, Aug. 14.—Button Willow Borden casing is set below heaving shale; standing is cemented at 4,700 feet. The work is progressing very satisfactorily. It is expected that the drill will be fired on the New York curb market next week.

A number of Canadian securities are now selling at prices extremely attractive for both speculative and investment funds. We would like to call attention to what appears to be good possibilities in Pure Horner, Shawinigan, International Metals, Beatty Bloomfield, Hollinger and Canadian Car. These stocks represent some of those occupy strong positions in their respective fields, are on a dividend basis and have a promising outlook. In addition to offering an attractive yield, they also offer possibilities of market appreciation over a period.

NEW YORK, Aug. 14.—Further decline was experienced today in the first half of yesterday's session. An additional drive was undertaken about noon on the Iron Age report of slightly lower steel operations. The short interest, however, found differing stance at the lows, which instituted a covering movement that carried prices above the previous day's close.

A preliminary calculation of the low for the Dow Jones thirty industrials yesterday yields 214.48 as the support level previously pointed out as being established on July 8 at 214.64. The rally followed initial comparatively heavy selling on the reaction and a period of quiet during it the character of the initial automatic technical recovery could extend somewhat further before meeting resistance.

IOWA CROP REPORT

Following is the Iowa crop report for August 15. It shows that the damage, caused by the drought has not been confined to corn.

Since August 1 unbroken drought in much of the state, with temperatures of 100 or higher, has caused a further decline which it is difficult to estimate. Pastures and fruit for household canning is scarce. Late potatoes are nearly a failure in most of the state. And pastures are mostly brown and bare. Recent threshing reports show much larger yields of timothy seed than expected. The dairy industry is hard hit. Pastures are dried up for most part and dairy cattle are subsisting on Winter feed.

CALGARY OIL NEWS

(Miller, Court & Co., Ltd.)

CALGARY, Aug. 14.—Commonwealth Mitchell River test was selected to start running four and three-quarter-inch casing yesterday, preparatory to water shut off at the company's offices. Geologists are of the opinion that interesting developments might be expected in the Devonian formation at depth of 4,341 feet, where characteristics in the Devonian formation begin to show a chance to zones which contain hydrocarbon vapors.

Unofficial reports yesterday stated that Texas Oil Company of Canada and Imperial Oil Company plan to drill jointly a deep test on interested within territory a few miles southwest of Lethbridge. The structure is immediately east of and parallel to the Blood Reserve area, which is being core tested by Commonwealth preparatory to deep test drilling. The Texas-Imperial test will proceed without preliminary surface investigation. It is planned to start moving cable tool equipment on the ground in a week or so.

Original gas flow of between 16,000,000 and 20,000,000 cubic feet was restored yesterday at Spooner No. 1, one of the pioneer Turner Valley producers, following a shut off of misperforation according to field reports. The well for a long period was on part production of forty barrels daily owing to an obstruction which developed after the first strike was made. The well is half a mile south of United No. 4.

Carnegie Petroleum officials are considering several alternative courses of future development, it is announced. It is probable that a definite programme will be decided upon shortly.

Carnegie Pete's first venture in the extreme Southern Red Coulee area recently encountered water at the top of the lime and was abandoned.

TESTS AT WOODBINE

(Mohaney, Roe & Co., Ltd.)

According to a recent report from Hugh A. McGuire, managing director of the Woodbine Gold Mining Company, he is enthusiastic about the present testing on the company's property in the Portland Canal district. Results, he says, will bring further investment expenditure.

An open perpendicular cut across the face of the ore exposure shows promisingly and further work is expected to indicate a fair tonnage with good value. Test drilling at the bottom of No. 1 tunnel indicated one foot high as $40 in gold alone per ton, with prospects of deep pay test. It is proposed to sink a shaft at this point approximately fifty feet deep and then drift on the ore body.

It is estimated that the work will require about $16,000, but it is felt that it will prove up Woodbine as a worth-while mine, and consequently a great deal of interest is being taken. Financing of this additional development work will be arranged, it is expected, with certain large stock interests.

Premier is carrying out development work on the opposite side of the mountain from its present workings and this is directly across from the showings on the Woodbine, which adjoins in the same direction and which have been traced for considerable of the Boundary distance. It is understood that Premier is striking satisfactory ore in this work, the results of which will be closely watched by Woodbine officials.

Burgess Bedtime Stories

Getting Acquainted

By THORNTON W. BURGESS.

To strangers always be polite;
You'll find it wise as well as right.
—Jerry Muskrat.

On the bank of the Smiling Pool sat Peter Rabbit perfectly still. On one end of an old log, which was half in and half out of water, sat Jerry Muskrat. He, too, was perfectly still. Both were watching the approach of a beautiful white stranger. With slow, stately steps the stranger was drawing near. At times he stood perfectly still for so long that Peter Rabbit nearly lost patience. Twice his long neck shot forward and his long yellow bill seized something in the water. Once it was a half-grown frog; once it was a minnow. The white stranger was fishing.

At last the stranger was near enough. He had not seen Jerry, nor had he seen Peter. That was because they had kept so still. Had they moved ever so little, the keen eyes of the stranger would have seen them instantly. At last Peter ventured to thump lightly. Instantly the stranger was gazing at him with suspicious eyes. "Excuse me," said Peter, "I think you must be a stranger here at the Smiling Pool."

The stranger looked at Peter very hard. "Why do you think so?" he demanded.

"Because I visit the Smiling Pool often and never have I seen you before," replied Peter.

"And I live right here in the Smiling Pool," squeaked Jerry Muskrat, "and never have I seen you before."

The stranger turned a pair of bright eyes on Jerry. "Hello!" he he. "I begin to feel more at home. There are many of your family down where I come from."

"You mean," said Jerry, "that there are many Muskrats?"

"That's it," replied the stranger. "That's what I mean. I always feel at home with a few Muskrats around."

"If you please," said Peter in his most polite manner, "I would like to know who you are. I am Peter Rabbit."

"There was a twinkle in the eyes of the stranger. "I am pleased to meet you, Peter Rabbit," said he "I am Egret from the White Heron."

"I knew you were a Heron!" cried Jerry Muskrat. "You must be cousin to Lookigo the Great Blue Heron."

The stranger nodded. "I am," said he, "and I am cousin to all the rest of the Herons. There are several of them, you know."

"And you are a stranger here, are you not?" cried Peter.

"Absolutely, Peter, absolutely! I never was here before in my life. It is a very pleasant place here, and the fishing seems good." Egret spoke in a very croaking sort of voice.

"Have you been over on the Big River?" inquired Jerry Muskrat.

Egret nodded. "I followed the Big River to get here," said he.

"Why don't you ever done it before?" inquired Peter.

"I have never been so far north before," replied Egret. "I've heard tall of here my family used to come as far north as this in the days of the Great Ice, but this is the first time I have ventured up this way."

"Did you come up alone?" inquired Jerry Muskrat.

"No," replied Egret, "a few of my friends came along with me."

"I hope now that you are here that you will stay," said Peter, and he said it very nicely, as if he meant it, which he did.

"Thank you," replied Egret. "It all depends on the fishing."

CAPITAL OF HUNAN PROVINCE PANICKY

Changsha Fears Reoccupation by Communists and Reprisals Against Savage Repressive Measures

By JAMES L. HUTTS
(Copyright, 1930, by The Chicago Daily News Foreign Service.)

PEIPING, Aug. 14—Changsha, capital of Hunan Province, is again panicky according to latest wireless accounts, fearing a reoccupation by Communist bands and reprisals against the savage repressive measures of Nanking Government troops, who have executed numerous Red suspects.

Communists today were reported advancing against Nanking, the Nationalist Government capital, and the sister cities of Hankow, Hanyang and Wuchang, 600 miles up the Yangtze River from the sea.

This city was virtually defenceless and appeared doomed should the Reds continue their threatened attack. Few defenders remained within the thirty-two mile wall encircling the capital, practically all troops having been drawn to fronts on which the Government and Northern rebels are fighting for supremacy in China.

Uneasiness was rife here as peasants turned Communists and appeared in surrounding towns armed with rifles.

Many suspected Communists were summarily executed at Hankow. Thousands of terrified Chinese poured into the city, frightened from their outlying homes by the invasion.

CHEESE PARTIES IN LONDON

London's "Bright-Young People" who are looking for novelties have found a new one. It is a bread and cheese party with every kind of cheese known to Europe and every kind of bottled beer. The guests appear in fancy costumes of original design.

VANCOUVER THEATRE CASE GOES TO COURT

VANCOUVER, Aug. 14—An order was made in Supreme Court today by Mr. Justice Gregory that all parties attend before Chief Justice Morrison at 10:30 a.m., Friday, for the hearing of an application for writ of mandamus commanding the Board of Examiners to permit C. R. Hayter to act as an assistant in the projectionist in the Colonial Theatre.

The application, said to be in the nature of a test case, was made by D. N. Hossie in behalf of Mr. Hayter.

Hayter is said to be a licensed operator but without permit, and was refused a permit Wednesday by the Board of Examiners which includes Fire Marshal J. A. Thomas, the assistant fire marshal and chief inspector of electrical energy.

On behalf of the Royal, Columbia and Colonial Theatres a telegram was sent yesterday to the Lieutenant-Governor-in-Council, appealing for the suspension.

A reply was received today from the secretary of the Lieutenant-Governor, acknowledging the appeal, and stating that same are receiving consideration by proper authorities.

Steps were also take to advise the Attorney-General of the grounds upon which Hector Quagliotti-Romano of the Colonial Theatre, considers his suspension unfair, and upon which he reopened his theatre yesterday afternoon in defiance of the censor's order as received through the fire marshal.

Victoria Jersey Herd Feature at Vancouver Show

VANCOUVER, Aug. 14—The chief feature of this year's Jersey showing at the Canada Pacific Exhibition is the success of two breeders.

Their success in amassing both grand championships, besides many other awards against such old-established herds as David Spencer, Limited, and A. E. Dunnill shows what can be done by a few years' careful selection in building up a herd. They are H. E. Burbidge, Saltscombe Farm, Royal Oak, Victoria, and W. S. Wainwright, Vancouver, the former capturing the premier honors in the male class and the latter both the grand championship and the reserve grand for females.

Incidentally it showed that the breed in British Columbia is under a great debt to J. S. H. Matson, of Victoria, as the champions were all bred from animals selected and imported by him from the Island of Jersey.

SALVING SHIP A PROBLEM

How to salvage the German steamer Monte Cervantes, which turned over in a wreck in the Beagle Channel, off Ushuaia, Tierra de Fuego, has been puzzling engineers. The vessel struck a rock and came to rest on her beam ends, the propellers and rudder protruding above the water.

Commercial travelers are to be taxed $75 a year in Southwest Africa Mandate.

Germany may increase its taxes.

WATERMELONS ARE COOLING

"Its Watermelon Time in the Old Hoops Town" might be the theme song of Summer. For the peak of the Summer heat and the delicious cooling juice of the watermelon arrive together. In fact, the watermelon may be considered as almost being a drink. It is ninety per cent water, and this is the purest water nature is able to produce. This is a thirst quencher, put up in nature's own soda fountain with an attractive cool colour, fruit sugar, mineral salts, vitamins and a pleasantly sweet pulp.

The watermelon originated in Africa, where it has been grown since the beginning of history, so that the negro's fondness for watermelon must be an inherited instinct. Its refreshment value on a hot day has made it popular, not only in Africa, Egypt and in the Orient, but in South America, Mexico, Europe, Canada, the United States and, in fact, every place where man has traveled.

Not alone is man fond of this food, but also every animal, including elephants and lions. Watermelons are alkaline-forming foods, the main elements which they supply being lime, iron and potash. They should be eaten when fully ripe, as then the natural sugar is completely developed. Dietetically, the safest rule to follow is to make a complete meal of the melon, using as much as desired at one time and nothing else. Thus, a meal of watermelon will make a delicious luncheon in Summer, and be easy to prepare.

Used alone, watermelon will not only taste the best but give the best results from a health standpoint. In the Summer months there is always the chance of using too much of the heavy foods. You will find that a luncheon of watermelon will balance the heavy foods used at breakfast and dinner, as the melon itself is very easily digested, being mostly water and fruit sugar.

Many of my patients have taken exclusive watermelon fasts, using no other food but watermelon for several days. In each case they have reported feeling much better and cleaner.

People who are fond of this delicious and luscious Summer fruit may sit down to a cold slice of melon and proceed to eat until they cannot load any more. If no other food is eaten at the same time this will not be injurious, as quite a large quantity can be eaten at one time with only beneficial effect. When eaten in this way the watermelon is cooling, satisfying and wholesome.

Those who are especially fond of watermelon, cantaloupe or casaba melon, and wish to use these melons with meals, may easily satisfy their appetite by adding a small amount of melon to a salad. An attractive way to use melon with a salad is to add small balls of melon to the salad. These balls are made with a potato baller, which is the same instrument for making Parisian potatoes. This instrument can be secured in any hardware store or restaurant supply house. Another way of using watermelon at the meal is to use a very thin slice with ice cream. Slice the melon fine, remove the seeds, and serve the ice cream on top of a piece of melon. This may be used as an entire luncheon, or as a dessert at the end of the meal providing only a small amount of melon is used.

INDIA AIDS PRIVATE FLYERS

Civilian, as well as commercial flying, in India, is receiving Government aid. The largest club is the Bombay Flying Club, located at Juhu Airport, near Bombay. It has just rounded out its first year of existence with 302 members. Of these eighty-two are Europeans and 136 Indians, all of whom are flyers. The club is Government subsidized, but the subsidy is expected to be reduced at the end of this year. The organization owns four planes. Students make frequently use these for extended trips to remote parts of India, and between important commercial centres. Other clubs in the country are reporting great progress, and many wealthy sportsmen are buying private planes.

PORTLAND POLICEMAN KILLS THEFT SUSPECT

PORTLAND, Aug. 14.—Frank Williams, alias Sutton, thirty-four, former San Quentin and Folsom prison convict and rubber suspect, was shot and killed today by Arthur Chase, police patrolman, after Williams is said to have beaten Chase into unconsciousness. The patrolman recovered in time to empty his revolver at the fleeing assailant.

Police said Williams was suspected of attempting to rob the E. W. Dietrick apartment. Chase discovered Williams loitering in the vicinity of the apartment house and questioned him. The former convict felled Chase with his fist. Chase's accuracy with his revolver stopped Williams nearly a block distant.

Records authorities said indicated Williams was known to police in Seattle and Vancouver, B.C.

Victoria-Seattle Planes Travel 19,700 Passenger Miles in Month of July

Among other regulations recently imposed on commercial organizations operating passenger plane services from a United States base, the authorities have issued instructions that the number of passenger miles flown must be recorded and included in their monthly reports. This regulation disclosed the fact that the Alaska-Washington Airways plane flew 19,700 passenger miles during the month of July.

Between Victoria, Vancouver and Seattle, the machines of the Airways Company operated to carry capacity loads each trip, the new Lockheed-Vega plane proving very popular. This machine is fitted with a special cowling, which adds eighteen miles an hour to the regular speed of this type of plane, making a speed of 165 miles-an hour, and covering the distance between Seattle and Victoria in 34 minutes. This improved Lockheed-Vega plane is the only one fitted with the special cowling at present on the run, and is in charge of W. Williams, who piloted the plane that was forced down near Seattle a short time ago, and later was partially destroyed by fire.

The investigation conducted by the authorities at Seattle, following the fire, resulted in Pilot Williams being commended for the manner in which he brought his passengers to safety, and the company for the efficiency demonstrated when the incident occurred.

ROYAL FLYER IS CAPTURED IN SHAM WAR

With Squadron Leader Don, Prince of Wales Was Forced Down

WHOLE ADVENTURE TREATED AS LARK

LONDON, Aug. 14—The Prince of Wales was the central figure in a story of thrilling being told today of war in the air now being waged in the form of Royal Air Force manoeuvres.

The Prince, flying with Squadron Leader Don, his personal pilot, in a Fairey plane, to watch the aerial conflicts promptly, was mistaken for an enemy raider and shot down by the valiant air defenders.

IN BLUE TERRITORY

The territory over which the manoeuvres are taking place in the Southern Counties of England, is divided into red land and blue land. When the Prince set out for the Northolt Airdrome yesterday his route took him over the blue territory. Wide-awake scouts quickly discovered the supposed new enemy among them, and an exciting chase followed, which ended when the Prince's plane without, of course, any knowledge that he had left the throne of Great Britain was the conquest of the intruding craft.

SAT ON HIS TAIL

They swooped down upon the Fairey, diving again and again. They sat on his tail in true raider fashion, and figuratively raked him with machine gun fire. Pilot Don did the obvious thing. He made a masterly effort to escape the swarthy swarm of pursuers, but ultimately was forced down at Andover Airdrome. The Prince of Wales took the whole adventure as a great lark, and was smiling with delight as he stepped from his plane.

CLEVER FEAT TO BE PERFORMED

Stunt Will Be Featured Over National Broadcasting Company's Network

Linking the voices of a half dozen people in a swiftly moving plane, 19,000 feet skyward and a diver on the ocean floor four miles out to sea in L.s striking fate radio promises for Friday, August 15, at 2 o'clock (P.S.T.), when the N.B.C. coast-to-coast network will present a conversation between feminine entrants in the Los Angeles-Chicago air derby and Captain A. D. Henderson, deep sea diver.

Henderson will be lowered to the ocean floor off the coast of Venice, Cal., from a yacht where radio technicians and announcers will complete the contact between him and the "powder puff" Derby entrants, flying overhead in a giant T.A.T. Maloos air liner, piloted by Lieutenant D. W. Tomlinson, Western division chief of operations. Jack Keough, N.B.C. sports announcer, will introduce the famous feminine flyers—Florence Lois Barnes, Bobby Trout, Marjorie Doig, Gladys O'Donnell, Elizabeth Hayward, Patty Willis, Katherine Truett, Aline Miller, Melba Gorby, Thelma Grainger, Edith Bond and probably Ruth Elder and Amelia Earhart.

Lloyd E. Yoder, special announcer for N.B.C. and Harry Caine, announcer for Station KMTR, Los Angeles, will be heard from the yacht, Winston C. ## BROADCAST BRIEFS OF THE AIR

Vincent Storey, convert violinist and ensemble director, has organized a native group of South American musicians who will be heard in a radio programme to be broadcast under the name of The Gauchos through stations KOL and KVI at 12:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon. Their programme includes the romantic songs of the South, with music of the music of Spain during the interludes.

Typical "big top" atmosphere will enhance the programme of the Gillson Circus scheduled for broadcast over KGW and KGMO between 8 and 8:30 o'clock tomorrow evening. A master of ceremonies will present the participants in the performance, including vocal and instrumental soloists and ensembles.

Carrying listeners back a half-dozen years or more, Melody Menagerie will hold the airwaves a half-hour at 6:30 o'clock tomorrow night, presenting for those tuned to KGW and KGO a group of numbers that once were popular. Marl Greenwood will direct the orchestra and Gail Taylor, soprano, is scheduled for two solos. "Is She My Girl Friend?" and the rhythmic, "On the Alamo," are two of the selections programmed.

The atmosphere of the England that was typified by ballad singing will be contrasted with modern jazz in a programme by Tom, Dick and Harry at 3 o'clock Saturday over KOL and KVI.

OTTAWA, Aug. 14—Sir John Simon, distinguished British advocate and chairman of the Indian Statutory Commission, will give Canadians a thorough insight into the question of India next Monday night, when he will speak from Toronto over a national radio broadcasting hook-up.
